

APPLYING PSYCHOLOGY

THE CASE OF TERRORISM AND POLITICAL VIOLENCE

ORLA LYNCH | CARMEL JOYCE

WILEY Blackwell

Applying Psychology

Applying Psychology

The Case of Terrorism and Political Violence

Orla Lynch and Carmel Joyce

WILEY Blackwell

This edition first published 2019
© 2019 John Wiley & Sons Ltd

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, except as permitted by law. Advice on how to obtain permission to reuse material from this title is available at <http://www.wiley.com/go/permissions>.

The right of Orla Lynch and Carmel Joyce to be identified as the authors of the editorial material in this work has been asserted in accordance with law.

Registered Offices

John Wiley & Sons, Inc., 111 River Street, Hoboken, NJ 07030, USA
John Wiley & Sons Ltd, The Atrium, Southern Gate, Chichester, West Sussex, PO19 8SQ, UK

Editorial Office

111 River Street, Hoboken, NJ 07030, USA

For details of our global editorial offices, customer services, and more information about Wiley products visit us at www.wiley.com.

Wiley also publishes its books in a variety of electronic formats and by print-on-demand. Some content that appears in standard print versions of this book may not be available in other formats.

Limit of Liability/Disclaimer of Warranty

While the publisher and authors have used their best efforts in preparing this work, they make no representations or warranties with respect to the accuracy or completeness of the contents of this work and specifically disclaim all warranties, including without limitation any implied warranties of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose. No warranty may be created or extended by sales representatives, written sales materials or promotional statements for this work. The fact that an organization, website, or product is referred to in this work as a citation and/or potential source of further information does not mean that the publisher and authors endorse the information or services the organization, website, or product may provide or recommendations it may make. This work is sold with the understanding that the publisher is not engaged in rendering professional services. The advice and strategies contained herein may not be suitable for your situation. You should consult with a specialist where appropriate. Further, readers should be aware that websites listed in this work may have changed or disappeared between when this work was written and when it is read. Neither the publisher nor authors shall be liable for any loss of profit or any other commercial damages, including but not limited to special, incidental, consequential, or other damages.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Names: Lynch, Orla, author. | Joyce, Carmel, 1980– author.
Title: Applying psychology : the case of terrorism and political violence / Orla Lynch and Carmel Joyce.
Description: Hoboken, NJ : Wiley-Blackwell, [2019] | Includes bibliographical references and index. |
Identifiers: LCCN 2018020268 (print) | LCCN 2018029174 (ebook) | ISBN 9781118835326 (Adobe PDF) |
ISBN 9781118835340 (ePub) | ISBN 9780470683170 (hardcover) | ISBN 9780470683163 (pbk.)
Subjects: LCSH: Terrorism—Northern Ireland—Psychological aspects. | Political violence—Northern
Ireland—Psychological aspects. | Terrorism—Great Britain—Psychological aspects. |
Political violence—Great Britain—Psychological aspects. | Terrorism—Psychological aspects. |
Political violence—Psychological aspects.
Classification: LCC HV6433.G7 (ebook) | LCC HV6433.G7 L96 2019 (print) | DDC 363.32501/9—dc23
LC record available at <https://lcn.loc.gov/2018020268>

Cover Design: Wiley
Cover Image: © abile/E+/Getty Images

Set in 10/12pt Warnock by SPi Global, Pondicherry, India

Contents

List of Figures ix

About the Authors xi

Acknowledgments xiii

1 Introduction 1

1.1 Psychology and Terrorism Research – The State of the Art 1

1.2 Moving Forward 3

1.3 Defining Terrorism 6

1.4 Defining Terrorism or “the Terrorist” in Psychological Terms 7

1.5 Conclusion 9

1.6 Chapter Descriptions 10

2 Applying a Research Framework 11

2.1 Applying Psychology 11

2.2 The Process of Defining the Problem 13

2.3 Applying Psychology to the Problem 15

2.4 Having Defined the Problem, Can We Solve It? 16

2.5 Outcome/Results/Application 17

2.6 Worked Example: Paramilitaries in the Northern Ireland
Post-peace Process 19

2.7 Conclusion 21

3 Psychological Processes in Terrorism Research 23

3.1 Psychological Processes in Terrorism Research: Individual Versus Group
Processes 23

3.2 Psychological Theories and Terrorism: Individual Versus Group Processes 24

3.3 Individual Processes: “Embodying” Terrorism 25

3.4 Biological Theories 26

3.5 Terrorism and Psychopathology 27

3.6 Psychological Trauma, Radicalization, and Terrorism 29

3.7 Root Causes 30

3.8 Social Cognition 32

3.9 Terrorism and “Universal Needs” 32

- 3.10 Terror Management Theory and Symbolic Immortality Needs 34
- 3.11 The Effect of Terrorism on “Everyday” People 35
- 3.12 It’s Not “Them,” It’s “Us” 36
- 3.13 Social Identity Theory 37
- 3.14 Disengagement as an Individual and/or Collective Phenomenon 38
- 3.15 Discussion 40

- 4 Methodological Considerations 43
- 4.1 Doing Terrorism Research: Pitfalls, Priorities, and Potential 43
- 4.2 Disclaimers 46
- 4.3 Methodological Concerns in Field Research 46
- 4.4 The Identity of the Researcher 47
- 4.5 Issues of Language Use 50
- 4.6 Ethical Responsibilities of Researchers in Divided Societies 53
- 4.7 Code of Ethics and Limits of Confidentiality 55
- 4.8 Methodological Approaches: Debates and Disputes 57
- 4.9 Retrospective Identity Construction 59
- 4.10 Method to Data Collection—How Can this Be Constructed within the Framework of Buunk and Van Vugt (2013)? 62
- 4.11 The Use of Visual Tools 63
- 4.12 Conclusion 64

- 5 From Paramilitary to Peacemaker: Ex-Prisoners in Northern Ireland 67
- 5.1 Exploring the Use of Identity Management Strategies by Republican and Loyalist Ex-Prisoners as They Retroactively Discuss Their Transition from Paramilitary to Peacemaker 67
- 5.2 The Psychology of Disengagement 69
- 5.3 Retrospective Identity Construction 70
- 5.4 Method 72
- 5.5 Interview Context and Procedure 72
- 5.6 Analytic Process 72
- 5.7 Preliminary Analysis 73
- 5.8 Identity Continuity and Context Variability 74
- 5.9 Transition and Identity Reinvention 77
- 5.10 The Negotiation of Legitimacy 80
- 5.11 Discussion 84

- 6 Making Meaning Out of the Conflict in Northern Ireland 89
- 6.1 Making Meaning Out of the Conflict in Northern Ireland: The Meaning Maintenance Model as a Framework for Understanding Engagement in Political Violence and Peace Building in Northern Ireland 89
- 6.2 Moving Forward 91
- 6.3 Meaning-Making in Postconflict Northern Ireland 92
- 6.4 Former Political Prisoners and Meaning-Making 93
- 6.5 The MMM and Former Perpetrators in Northern Ireland 94
- 6.6 Method 96

6.6.1	The Negotiation of Terminology	96
6.6.2	Participants and Procedure	96
6.6.3	Analytic Process	96
6.7	Analysis	98
6.7.1	Interviewer-Included Threats to Meaning	98
6.8	Using “Belongingness” to Challenge “Certainty”	103
6.9	Conclusion and Evaluation	106
7	Assumptions Around Identity: The Case of British Muslim Youths	111
7.1	Assumptions Around Identity: Radicalization and the Case of British Muslim Youths	111
7.2	Identity, Radicalization, and Psychological Research	114
7.3	Methodology	116
7.4	Results/Discussion	116
7.4.1	Muslim Youths and Islamic Linked Terrorism in the UK	116
7.5	Intergenerational Change, Cultural Transmission, and Intergenerational Conflict	119
7.6	Discussion	123
7.7	Conclusion	125
8	Discussion	127
8.1	An Introduction	127
8.2	Applying Methodological Rigor in Psychology to Terrorism Research	128
8.3	Qualitative Research and Terrorism	131
8.4	Psychology and Terrorism: Bidirectional Relationships	132
8.5	Psychology and Terrorism: Opening up the Discussion and Future Directions	134
8.6	Conclusion	134
	Bibliography	135
	Index	153

List of Figures

- Figure 2.1 Steps taken during the process of problem formulation and definition. 20
- Figure 5.1 Thematic map of emergent superordinate and subthemes. 73
- Figure 6.1 Modified diagrammatic representation of template style of analysis. 97
- Figure 6.2 Example of coding template. 97
- Figure 7.1 Summary of Muslim youth identity processes. 123

About the Authors

Dr. Orla Lynch is currently the Head of Criminology at University College Cork, Ireland. Until 2015 she was Director of Teaching and a Lecturer in Terrorism Studies at CSTPV at the University of St. Andrews. Orla's background is in International Security Studies and Applied Psychology; her primary training is as a social psychologist. She studied at both the University of St. Andrews (MLitt) and University College Cork (PhD). Orla is a fellow with Hedayah and a board member of RAN, Europe as well as an academic advisor to the Resolve Network. Orla's current research focuses on victimization and political violence in relation to the direct victims of violence, but also the broader psycho-social impact of victimization and the perpetrator–victim complex. Orla has also examined the notion of suspect communities in relation to the impact of counterterrorism measures on Muslim youth communities. Orla was the principal investigator on a multisite EU-funded project that looks at the importance of notions of victimization for former perpetrators of political violence and the role of both former perpetrators and victims in ongoing peace initiatives. Orla was also previously PI on another EU-funded project looking at the needs of victims of terrorism. To date Orla has secured €1.4 million in EU research funding, and over €200,000 in IRCHSS, SRF, and Enterprise Ireland funding. Orla's current research interests lie in individual and group desistance from political violence, including issues related to deradicalization, prison radicalization, the role of grand narratives in justifying involvement in violence, and psychosocial understandings of the transitions from violence to peace. Her recent books include Victims and Perpetrators of Terrorism: Exploring Identities, Roles and Narratives (Routledge, London), Victims of Terrorism: A Comparative and Interdisciplinary Study (Palgrave, London), and International Perspectives on Terrorist Victimisation: An Interdisciplinary Approach (Routledge, London).

Dr. Carmel Joyce is a Postdoctoral Research Fellow in the Department of Sociology, University College Cork, Ireland. She is currently involved in an IRC-funded project which looks at how the Irish diaspora who supported NORAIID manage their national identity post-9/11 and Boston Bombing. Before joining UCC, Carmel was a postdoctoral researcher in the Centre for the Study of Terrorism and Political Violence in St. Andrews University, Scotland. Carmel completed a PhD in the Department of Psychology, University of Limerick, Ireland. Her thesis employed both discursive and experimental methods to examine displays of national identity among subgroups in Ireland and the potential consequentiality for entitlement within the nation. Carmel also holds a BA in Psychological Studies, Sociology, and Politics from the National University of Ireland, Galway, as well as a postgraduate Higher Diploma in Applied Psychology from University College Cork.

Acknowledgments

This book would not have been possible without the support and patience of a number of key people in our lives. We would like to thank the editors and staff at Wiley Blackwell for recognizing the potential of this book to speak to academic audiences, practitioners, policy makers, and those whose interest it sparks. Thank you to our funders over the past few years, the Irish Research Council and the European Union (Home ISEC and Criminal justice 2009–2011) who provided the support necessary to carry out the empirical research that is the keystone of this book. Thank you to Emily O’Callaghan who was involved in the editing and proofreading stage. Thank you to our friends who provided encouragement, support, and fresh eyes on the numerous iterations of this book, as it evolved and took shape. We would also like to thank those individuals who over the years inspired, advised, and mentored us on this journey; we are privileged to know you and to learn from you.

On a personal note, I, Carmel, would like to thank my loving family and in particular my husband, Steve, who is a constant source of support and reminds me of the bigger picture when I get stuck in the details. Relatedly, I am also grateful to Steve for our wonderful twin sons Finn and Darragh and new baby daughter Anna, who are the center of our world. A big thank you to my Mom, their “Nana,” who has given me every opportunity to achieve the goals I have set out for myself in life, including the completion of this book. Finally, thank you to my Dad and my brothers, Sean and Mike, who make me laugh in more frustrating times, reminding me of the lighter side of life.

And finally, I, Orla, would like to acknowledge that without the support of my family, this project would never have reached its conclusion. To my husband, Stephen, and my sons, Rian and Tom, for always showing me what really matters in life. To my sisters, for all their help and support, and to my parents, for setting me on this path and never questioning why—thank you.

Applying Psychology

