

“The Bible of General Elections”

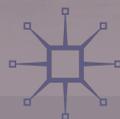

David Dimbleby

ROBERT FORD
TIM BALE

WILL JENNINGS
PAULA SURRIDGE

The BRITISH GENERAL
ELECTION of 2019

Praise for previous editions

‘The Bible of General Elections’—David Dimbleby, BBC

‘It’s popular academic writing at its best, combining a clear narrative (using anecdotes and quotes garnered from more than 300 background interviews) with lots of solid, meaty number-crunching’—The Guardian

‘Indispensable’—Matthew d’Ancona, Daily Telegraph

‘The quality of the analysis is as sharp as ever’—Fabian Review

‘... a riveting read ... this is easily the best political book of the year’—Political-Betting.com

‘The studies have become by now almost part of our democratic fabric’—The Listener

‘The best series anywhere on national elections’—Annals of American Academy of Political and Social Science

Other books in this series

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1945

R. B. McCallum and Alison Readman

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1950

H. G. Nicholas

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1951

David Butler

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1955

David Butler

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1959

David Butler and Richard Rose

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1964

David Butler and Anthony King

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1966

David Butler and Anthony King

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1970

David Butler and Michael Pinto-Duschinsky

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF FEBRUARY 1974

David Butler and Dennis Kavanagh

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF OCTOBER 1974

David Butler and Dennis Kavanagh

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1979

David Butler and Dennis Kavanagh

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1983

David Butler and Dennis Kavanagh

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1987

David Butler and Dennis Kavanagh

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1992

David Butler and Dennis Kavanagh

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 1997

David Butler and Dennis Kavanagh

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 2001

David Butler and Dennis Kavanagh

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 2005

Dennis Kavanagh and David Butler

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 2010

Dennis Kavanagh and Philip Cowley

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 2015

Philip Cowley and Dennis Kavanagh

THE BRITISH GENERAL ELECTION OF 2017

Philip Cowley and Dennis Kavanagh

Robert Ford · Tim Bale ·
Will Jennings · Paula Surridge

The British General Election of 2019

palgrave
macmillan

Robert Ford
University of Manchester
Manchester, UK

Will Jennings
School of Economic, Social and Political Science
University of Southampton
Southampton, Hampshire, UK

Tim Bale
School of Politics and International Relations
Queen Mary University of London
London, UK

Paula Surridge
University of Bristol
Bristol, Avon, UK

ISBN 978-3-030-74253-9 ISBN 978-3-030-74254-6 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-030-74254-6>

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s), under exclusive license to Springer
Nature Switzerland AG 2021, corrected publication 2022

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.
The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication.
Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, expressed or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover credit: Stefan Rousseau / PA Images / Alamy Stock Photo

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature
Switzerland AG
The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

FOREWORD

Rob Ford and his team have produced the twenty-first volume in a series of British general election studies that started with the 1945 election. The series has continued without interruption and has no counterpart anywhere else. The 2019 election is remarkable for being the third general election in four years, a unique event in modern British politics.

R. S. McCallum, the originator of the series, envisaged his book on the 1945 general election as an exercise in contemporary history. In a delightful phrase, he said the election ‘must be photographed in flight, studied and analysed’ and should be of service to future historians. He also enlisted a young numerate undergraduate to provide ‘some statistics for my book’. Nobody could anticipate that over 75 years later, the book would be the first in such a long-running series and that the undergraduate David Butler would become inseparable from it; the last one he co-authored was on the 2005 election.

There has been some debate about the predictability in the contents of the books, as befits a series. Michael Howard, then Conservative leader, commented that the 2005 book was ‘formulaic’. It might be countered that the series provides the material to plot the changes and continuities in, for example, candidate backgrounds, opinion polling, media coverage, election strategies and so on. But the authors, themselves a changing cast, have had to take account of so many changes in context, notably the fragmentation of the party system, the blanket media coverage and the big shifts in the forces shaping voting behaviour. The British General Election of 2019 balances these changes and continuities admirably, making use of so many interviews with key decision makers in the parties and providing detailed and sophisticated analysis of the results. An understanding of contemporary British politics serious can start in no better place than the present Nuffield study.

The first general early election studies were sponsored by Nuffield College. David Butler was a Fellow of the College and his co-authors until 1970 were based at Oxford. Although still called Nuffield election studies, the authorial connection has been steadily extinguished since then. Ford is based at Manchester, Bale at Queen Mary College, Jennings at Southampton and Surridge at Bristol.

As the co-author with David of 12 of the election studies, I was always grateful for the professionalism and adaptability of our publisher Palgrave Macmillan. The books are feats of teamwork—this one perhaps more than any of the earlier ones—and the publishing team has been a crucial player.

Altrincham, UK

Dennis Kavanagh

The original version of the book was revised: Post-publication corrections have been incorporated. The corrections to the book are available at https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-030-74254-6_16

PREFACE

This volume is the twenty-first in a series which originated in 1945 in Nuffield College, Oxford. The author of that first volume, Ronald McCallum, was irritated by constant misinterpretations of the 1918 election and hoped his book would provide an objective record of events to combat such myths. This is the first volume since 1951 not to feature at least one of David Butler, Dennis Kavanagh and Philip Cowley on the authors list. While the team is new, the aim of this latest entry in the world's longest-running series of elections studies remains the same: to provide an accurate and, as far as possible, impartial account and explanation of the general election.

This book, like its predecessors, would not be possible without the generous support and cooperation of many others. Those who worked on the election for the various different parties were immensely generous with their time and thoughts, usually via Zoom video call as the restrictions of the global COVID-19 pandemic rendered face-to-face interviews impossible. They are not named or listed here as many spoke on condition of strict confidentiality, but we hope that the story we tell is one they recognise, even if they do not agree with all the conclusions we draw. Unsourced quotes used in the book are taken from these interviews, unless otherwise indicated. Many of our sources also reviewed draft chapters, suggesting improvements and challenging us to improve our thinking, for which we are again grateful. All remaining errors belong to the authors alone.

The argument over Brexit dominated this Parliament from start to finish, as Theresa May sought to work to the two-year deadline she herself had triggered by invoking Article 50 of the Lisbon Treaty in March 2017. Unpicking over 40 years of political and economic integration in such a timeframe would be an impossible task for any Prime Minister, and was made more challenging still by May's failure to secure a parliamentary majority at the 2017 election. Both parties, and Parliament itself, began to buckle under the pressures of contradictory demands and impossible deadlines. Every vote became a knife-edge drama, briefly turning Commons debates into an unlikely spectator sport—one of the authors even noticed that his local pub began switching its TVs from Sky Sports to the Parliament Channel so that punters could cheer on their preferred outcome during crunch votes. The pressures proved too much for May, a leader distrusted from the outset by her party's Brexiteer wing, and who lacked the flexibility or powers of persuasion necessary to overcome this distrust or build bridges with opposition MPs. Brexit defined her and defeated her.

May was succeeded by Boris Johnson, once the most prominent Conservative in the 2016 Leave campaign, who had resigned from May's Cabinet in the summer of 2018 in protest against compromises with the EU he claimed were unacceptable, and then, a year later, successfully bid for the top job by promising a more hard-line approach on Brexit. Johnson delivered on his promise from the outset, with several dramatic and deeply controversial gestures designed to underscore his determination to resolve Brexit without delay. He also confounded critics by securing alterations to May's Brexit deal which proved sufficient to win over both his party's Eurosceptics and pro-Brexit Labour MPs. However, unable to force it through Parliament by his self-imposed deadline, he then took the matter to the electorate, urging voters to give him the majority needed to implement his supposedly 'oven-ready' Brexit deal and finally 'get Brexit done'.

British voters were thus, for the second time, invited to the polls early by a Conservative Prime Minister seeking a Brexit mandate. This time, however, the Labour opposition proved unable to shift the focus of the campaign away from Brexit, where their own position was an unappealing compromise, and towards domestic policy. There was no repeat of the 2017 campaign drama. This was a more conventional British election, where the party that started with a poll lead, a better-regarded leader and a more popular policy on the most important issue of the day retained all three from start to finish, then won by a margin largely predictable from the final polling. Several recent elections have been marked by high levels of campaign volatility. This was not one of them. The result, though, was historic—a first large Conservative majority for more than 30 years, capping over two decades of recovery for the party since its collapse in 1997. While authors of this series have long been justly sceptical about naming elections, this was in many key ways the ‘Brexit election’. It was called over Brexit by a party which campaigned relentlessly on the issue, voters’ Brexit preferences were critical in determining the result, and the conclusion of Britain’s fraught exit process from the EU was the most significant immediate consequence of the result. The choice voters made in 2019 will resonate for a long time.

We are grateful to all of our contributors, whose names are listed in the table of contents, and all of whom met tough deadlines in demanding conditions and dealt with our many editorial requests with graceful dispatch. We are also grateful to the authors of the preceding three volumes, Dennis Kavanagh and Philip Cowley, who have provided generous support to the new team, including the contribution of a foreword (Kavanagh) and a chapter (Cowley) to this latest volume. In addition to contributing a chapter and the analysis in Appendix 1, John Curtice, Stephen Fisher and Patrick English also supplied the data from which Appendix 2 has been compiled.

The structure of this book once again follows the broad template of previous volumes in the series, with some variations to accommodate the context of this election. A separate chapter on Brexit is once again necessary, given the issue’s dominance of the campaign and the preceding Parliament. We once again open with a chapter on the decision to call an early election. Recent volumes have acknowledged the diverging political context of Scotland with a separate chapter; we expand this into a chapter covering politics in all three of the devolved nations. We have also expanded the remit of the broadcasting chapter to reflect the growing blurring together of broadcast and online campaign coverage. This volume also introduces a chapter analysing the election result at the individual level and promotes the traditional appendix analysis of geographical voting patterns into the main text. Our story ends, like most of its predecessors, with the announcement of the election result, with only brief attention to its aftermath.

None of the authors could possibly have completed this book in the middle of a global pandemic without the amazing forbearance and support of their respective families and especially their respective partners/spouses. Rob would like to thank Maria, Zofia and Adam for putting up with far too many conversations about the BBC—Brexit, Boris and Corbyn. Tim would like to thank Jackie. Paula would like to thank Neil, Thomas and Daniel who have had to forgo far too many family game afternoons. Will would like to thank Natalie and Arthur for their support and patience.

We are also grateful to colleagues who have supported this project in various ways. We owe a special debt of gratitude once again to Wes Ball, who provided invaluable background research and support for Chapters 4, 6 and 7; to Chris Butler for his vital research and support for Chapter 5; and to Ruth Puddefoot for her research contributing to Chapter 9. Thanks also to Siddharth Singh Ahlawat, Nick Allen, Jack Bailey, Matthew Bailey, Martha Bearne, Daniel Braby, Hannah Bunting, David Cowling, Daniel Devine, Alhussein Elrayah, Ed Fieldhouse, Louisa Gabriel, Jennifer Gaskell, Isla Glaister, Matthew Goodwin, Jane Green, Robert Hutton, Laurence Janta-Lipinski, Ian Jones, John Kenny, Beth Mann, Siobhan McAndrew, Lawrence McKay, Jon Mellon, Neil Moss, Tim Oliver, Nick Or, Chris Prosser, Colin Rallings, Andra Roescu, Georgia Shepherd, Maria Sobolewska, Gerry Stoker, Patrick Sturgis, Michael Thrasher, Joe Twyman, Viktor Orri Valgarðsson, Julia Walker, Ian Warren, Paul Webb, Stuart Wilks-Heeg, Christopher Wlezien and Negus Woldegiorgis.

The writing of this book was aided by other excellent accounts of the election, the Parliament and the political parties which came out as it was being produced. These included Gabriel Pogrund and Patrick Maguire's Left Out, David Kogan's Protest and Power, Anthony Seldon and Raymond Newell's May at 10, and Jonathan Tonge, Stuart Wilks-Heeg and Louise Thompson's Britain Votes 2019. We also owe a great debt of gratitude to the UK in a Changing Europe initiative, whose 'Brexit Witness Archive' project was a treasure trove of insights, and will be a vital resource for future historians seeking to understand the domestic and international politics of the UK's departure from the EU. We are indebted to all of these sources and many others for helping to inform our analysis. We do not agree with these authors and sources on every point, but their insights have enriched our own work.

We are also indebted to all of those who have allowed us to reproduce material. This includes the political parties, who all generously allowed us to reproduce campaign materials. We are also once again grateful to Britain's extraordinary talented political cartoonists. Christian Adams, Dave Brown, Ben Jennings, Nicola Jennings, Graham Keyes, Morten Morland, Martin Rowson, Chris Riddell and Martyn Turner all granted us permission to use their outstanding images, and the book is all the better for it. We are also grateful to News UK for granting permissions to use Morten Morland's cartoons. The majority of photos in the plates section at the front, and in the main chapters, come courtesy of either Alamy or Getty. We are also grateful to the anonymous source who provided the cameraphone photo from inside Southside on election night (p. 261).

Rob Ford would like to acknowledge the funding provided by the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) and the UK in a Changing Europe initiative Rapid Reaction Funding Scheme for funding research on the Labour Party and Brexit, which has contributed to this volume. Tim Bale would like to acknowledge the funding provided by the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) for his research (conducted with Paul Webb and Monica Poletti) on party members (grant numbers ES/M007537/1 and ES/T015632/1). Will Jennings would like to acknowledge funding from the University of Southampton to support research interviews and the ESRC for his research on political trust and UK polling (ES/S009809/1 and ES/S000380/1). Paula Surridge would like to acknowledge a University Research Fellowship from the University of Bristol, which allowed her to have a period of study leave covering the period including the election and its aftermath.

Finally, the author team would like to thank our editors Ambra Finotello and Rebecca Roberts, copy-editor Jon Lloyd and the whole team at Palgrave Macmillan for helping us to tell the story of an extraordinary election.

Manchester, UK
 London, UK
 Southampton, UK
 Bristol, UK
 May 2021

Robert Ford
 Tim Bale
 Will Jennings
 Paula Surridge

PRAISE FOR *THE BRITISH GENERAL
ELECTION OF 2019*

“If we journalists write the first draft of history, we rely on academia to produce the definitive version when it comes to General Elections. The authors of The British General Election of 2019 are the experts we—and the nation—need to tell us what really happened and to explain why. Never has this been more important. This was a truly transformative election, as Boris Johnson assembled a new winning Conservative coalition of voters and a record number of inexperienced MPs ended up in Parliament. Painstakingly and perceptively, this essential book exposes the sources of what is going on in British politics today.”

—Adam Boulton, Editor at Large, Sky News

“An exhaustive, well-researched, informative and highly readable account. A must for anyone who wants to understand British politics.”

—Stephen Bush, Political Editor, New Statesman

“An invaluable account, superbly researched, of one of the most significant periods of modern British political history. Historians will look back one day in wonder that the UK of all places came to be so infected by the virus of populism that Boris Johnson became Prime Minister. This will be an important part of that story. A must-read for anyone wanting to understand how Brexit, a changed Labour Party and a changed Tory Party combined to give the Tories a majority they are now exploiting to the full, and Labour a disastrous defeat from which they are struggling to recover.”

—Alastair Campbell, Editor at Large, New European

“A comprehensive romp through the dramatic run-up to the 2019 general election, the culmination of several electrifying years which transformed British politics. From Getting Brexit Done, through Jeremy Corbyn’s leadership to the state of the Union, the authors tell the compelling story of an election that fundamentally redrew the political map. Packed with anecdotes, data and analysis, this is a must read for anybody who wants to understand what comes next.”

—Pippa Crerar, Political Editor of the Daily Mirror

“To be able to identify every tree but never lose sight of the wood is a very difficult skill, but one these authors possess. The result is an adornment to the important series to which this book belongs. A consequential account of a consequential election.”

—Daniel Finkelstein, Times Columnist, Conservative Member of the House of Lords and Chair of Onward think tank

“This is such a fascinating, detailed and well-sourced account that anyone wanting to go near another election should not only read it but keep it as a talisman against making the same mistakes again. It’s a rare mix of authoritative and funny.”

—Isabel Hardman, Assistant Editor, The Spectator and Author of Why We Get The Wrong Politicians

“A riveting read, explaining the deep currents running through the 2019 “Brexit election” and the way the country’s political map was changed beyond recognition. Fresh insights from the people in the room bring this remarkable story to life.”

—George Parker, Political Editor of the Financial Times

“This is more than the definitive study of the last general election: it is a map and compass for anyone trying to navigate the politics that that event has bequeathed us, including the remaking of the Conservative coalition and Labour’s steady decline. Existing evidence, new interviews and analysis are bound together tightly but with flair and verve. The book, justly, will serve as a resource for any student of politics for years to come.”

—Gabriel Pogrud, Whitehall Correspondent, The Sunday Times and Author of Left Out

“The British General Election series has charted the ebbs and flows of electoral politics for three-quarters of a century. The new team maintain the standard of their predecessors with a mix of shrewd judgement, pertinent comment, and robust statistical analysis.”

—Colin Rallings, Emeritus Professor of Politics,
University of Plymouth

“The authoritative account by an alpha team of political scientists. Lucid explanation of complex events and forces is combined with penetrating analysis of the causes and effects of a highly consequential election.”

—Andrew Rawnsley, Chief Political Commentator of The Observer
and Author of The End of the Party

“This is the definitive guide to one of the most important elections in British history. It is full of the best insights, inside accounts of the thinking of the different parties, and what is now established as the best statistical analysis led by Professor Sir John Curtice. The new authors have managed to maintain and even enhance the authority of the long-running series, which is now as essential a part of the British election tradition as the motorcade to Buckingham Palace for the winner to be invited to form a government.”

—John Rentoul, Chief Political Commentator, The Independent

“This book provides the definitive study of the 2019 UK General Election. It is brilliantly written in easy accessible language, and yet it simultaneously offers a sophisticated statistical analysis of the increasingly fractured and complex landscape of British electoral politics. It should be compulsory reading for anyone who wishes to understand both the electoral result in 2019 and the likely prospects of the major parties in the future.”

—David Sanders FBA, Professor of Government, University of Essex

“From the role of Brexit, to perceptions of the party leaders, to the election’s consequences: this is the authoritative account of the 2019 general election campaign and is required reading for anyone with an interest in contemporary British politics.”

—Sonia Sodha, Columnist and Leader Writer, The Observer

“The essential guide to the Get Brexit Done campaign of 2019, from the UK’s foremost elections experts. How Boris Johnson was able to bulldoze his way to a majority; what went wrong for Jeremy Corbyn, and much else besides. A must-read.”

—Heather Stewart, Political Editor, The Guardian

“This book is essential reading for anyone wanting to get under the skin of the most consequential election for decades. The authors marshal a wide range of essential sources with political nous to provide key insights into the Brexit maelstrom out of which the election sprang, and the dramatic realignment which voters then delivered. This is a foundational text for understanding a political revolution which will continue to play out for years to come.”

—Mark Wallace, CEO, ConservativeHome

“The decade just passed had no fewer than four extraordinary elections. For those who want to understand what each of them meant, the Palgrave Macmillan guides are nothing of seminal- allowing us to understand what really mattered, what really happened amid the ever amplifying noise. The 2019 edition is no exception and given it covers perhaps the most significant election of the four, it’s the most important. Perhaps the most frequent question I’m asked by exasperated viewers and readers is ‘what the hell has happened in politics?’- from now on I’ll simply refer them to this book.”

—Lewis Goodall, BBC’s Newsnight and Author of Left for Dead? The Strange Death and Rebirth of the Labour Party

“An unmissable retelling of one of the most complex and politically brutal periods we may ever know, and how it shaped the political landscape we have today.”

—Kate McCann, Political Correspondent at Sky

CONTENTS

1	The Calling of the Election Philip Cowley	1
2	The Long Goodbye: Brexit Anand Menon and Alan Wager	29
3	Rebuilding the Ship at Sea: The Conservatives	69
4	The Man Who Wasn't There: Labour Under Corbyn	107
5	An Unexpected Journey: The Smaller Parties in Parliament and at the Polls	159
6	Get Brexit Done: The National Campaign	193
7	The Red Wall Falls	243
8	The Polls: Redemption?	277
9	Fragmented and Polarised: Broadcasting and Social Media	305

10	Enduring Brands: The Press	347
	David Deacon, David Smith, and Dominic Wring
11	Political Recruitment Under Pressure, Again: MPs and Candidates in the 2019 General Election	387
	Chris Butler, Rosie Campbell, and Jennifer Hudson
12	The Devolved Nations	421
	Ailsa Henderson, Roger Awan-Scully, and Jonathan Tonge
13	The Geography of a Brexit Election: How Constituency Context and the Electoral System Shaped the Outcome	461
	John Curtice, Stephen Fisher, and Patrick English
14	The British Voter in 2019	495
15	The Election in Retrospect	551
	Correction to: The British General Election of 2019	C1
	Appendix 1: Further Analysis of the Results	577
	John Curtice, Stephen Fisher, and Patrick English
	Appendix 2: The Voting Statistics	606
	Index	647

LIST OF FIGURES

Fig. 2.1	The Irish Trilemma	33
Fig. 2.2	Barnier’s staircase	36
Fig. 8.1	Voting intentions for Westminster elections, 2017–2019 (Note LOWESS, bandwidth = 0.2)	283
Fig. 8.2	Government handling of Brexit (YouGov), 2017–2019 (Note LOWESS, bandwidth = 0.2)	285
Fig. 8.3	Best Prime Minister (YouGov), 2017–2019 (Note LOWESS, bandwidth = 0.2)	286
Fig. 8.4	Most important issue facing the nation (YouGov), 2017–2019 (Note LOWESS, bandwidth = 0.2)	287
Fig. 8.5	Voting intentions in public polls, 30 October–11 December 2019 (Note LOWESS, bandwidth = 0.4)	289
Fig. 8.6	Conservative-Labour lead in the polls, 30 October–11 December 2019 (Note LOWESS, bandwidth = 0.4)	290
Fig. 9.1	News media usage during the election campaign (Source Reuters Institute: ‘Which of these have you used to get news about the 2019 UK general election in the last week?’ [Sample = 752 respondents, 4 November–15 December])	308

Fig. 9.2	News app usage during the campaign (Source Reuters Institute: percentage of users who accessed each app [Sample = 758 respondents who accessed the internet using a mobile app, 4 November–15 December])	309
Fig. 9.3	Top political accounts followed by MPs on Twitter (Source Politico , January 2020)	329
Fig. 10.1	Word clouds of weekday election news headlines	371
Fig. 10.2	Press evaluations of Conservative and Labour policies and candidates	381
Fig. 11.1	Retiring Labour and Conservative MPs' average ages by gender. Note This figure includes all retiring MPs elected in 2017 as Labour or Conservative candidates, including those who left their parties during the Parliament	391
Fig. 11.2	Average years in the House for retiring Labour and Conservative MPs by gender. Note This figure includes all retiring MPs elected in 2017 as Labour or Conservative candidates, including those who left their parties during the Parliament	392
Fig. 11.3	Percentage of women (purple) and men (grey) elected to the House of Commons 1918–2019	402
Fig. 11.4	BAME MPs elected to the House of Commons 1987–2019 (Source House of Commons Library Briefing Paper CBP01156, 22 October 2020, 'Ethnic Diversity in Politics and Public Life')	403
Fig. 12.1	Scottish voting intentions in Westminster elections 2017–2019	427
Fig. 12.2	Welsh voting intentions in Westminster elections 2017–2019	437
Fig. 12.3	Northern Irish voting intentions in Westminster elections 2017–2019	444
Fig. 14.1	2019 general election vote by Leave and Remain vote in the 2016 referendum, England and Wales	498
Fig. 14.2	Flowchart of 2017 Conservative and Labour voters to 2019 general election vote in England and Wales (BES, face-to-face survey)	500

Fig. 14.3	Conservative share of the vote among Leavers and Remainers, BESIP England and Wales, 2015–2019	504
Fig. 14.4	Labour share of the vote among Leavers and Remainers, BESIP England and Wales, 2015–2019	505
Fig. 14.5	Liberal Democrat share of the vote among Leavers and Remainers, BESIP England and Wales, 2015–2019	506
Fig. 14.6	Conservative vote share by region in the 2015, 2017 and 2019 elections, BESIP England and Wales	507
Fig. 14.7	Labour vote share by region in the 2015, 2017 and 2019 elections, BESIP England and Wales	507
Fig. 14.8	Conservative vote share in ‘Red Wall’ constituencies and other England and Wales constituencies, BESIP, 2015–2019	509
Fig. 14.9	Labour vote share in ‘Red Wall’ constituencies and other England and Wales constituencies, BESIP, 2015–2019	509
Fig. 14.10	Probability of switching from Labour (2017) to Conservative (2019) in England and Wales, BESIP	511
Fig. 14.11	Probability of switching from Labour (2017) to the Remain bloc (2019) in England and Wales, BESIP	513
Fig. 14.12	Probability of switching from Labour (2017) to Conservative (2019) in England & Wales by left–right & liberal-authoritarian values, BESIP	514
Fig. 14.13	Probability of switching from Labour (2017) to the Remain bloc (2019) in England & Wales by left–right & liberal-authoritarian values, BESIP	514
Fig. 14.14	The size of Scotland’s constitutional tribes in December 2019, BESIP	517
Fig. 14.15	Party share of the Yes Remain vote, Scotland BESIP, 2015–2019	519
Fig. 14.16	Party share of the No Remain vote, Scotland BESIP, 2015–2019	519
Fig. 14.17	Party share of the No Leave vote, Scotland BESIP, 2015–2019	520

Fig. 14.18	Leader ratings, BESIP, 2019 Campaign Wave (13 November–11 December)	521
Fig. 14.19	Conservative and Labour leader ratings, BESIP, 2017 and 2019 Campaign Waves (Note 2017 BES campaign wave 5 May–7 June; 2019 BES campaign wave 13 November–11 December)	522
Fig. 14.20	a Conservative vote by educational attainment, BES 1979–2019. b Labour vote by educational attainment, BES 1979–2019	531
Fig. 14.21	Conservative-Labour vote margin by age, BES 1979–2019	532
Fig. 14.22	a Conservative vote by social class, BES 1979–2019. b Labour vote by social class, BES 1979–2019	533
Fig. 14.23	a Conservative vote by attitudes to Europe, BES 1979–2019. b Labour vote by attitudes to Europe, BES 1979–2019	535
Fig. 14.24	a Conservative vote by attitudes to the death penalty, BES 1979–2019. b Labour vote by attitudes to the death penalty, BES 1979–2019	537
Fig. 14.25	a The values positions of voters, BES 1992–2019. b The values positions of voters by party, BES 1992–2019	538
Fig. 15.1	Satisfaction with UK democracy (Leavers and Remainers), BESIP, 2015–19	568

LIST OF TABLES

Table 8.1	Public recall of manifesto pledges by the conservatives and labour	288
Table 8.2	Final polls for the December 2019 general election	291
Table 8.3	Final MRP seat projections for the December 2019 general election (GB)	292
Table 8.4	National exit poll for the December 2019 general election (GB)	297
Table A8.1	The 40 ‘Red Wall’ seats	299
Table A8.2	Final polls for the May 2019 European parliament election	300
Table A8.3	Poll error by general election (conservative and labour parties), Great Britain 1945–2019	301
Table 9.1	Issues covered in major television news bulletins (BBC, ITV, Sky News, Channel 4 and Channel 5)	310
Table 9.2	Chronology of set-piece televised events in the 2019 campaign	313
Table 9.3	Issues covered by the main Britain-wide televised debates	320
Table 9.4	Major TV leader interviews with political journalists during the 2019 campaign	323
Table 9.5	Twitter follower count of selected politics broadcast journalists and presenters	327

Table 9.6	Performance of the Labour and Conservative Party and leaders' Facebook and Twitter accounts, 2017 and 2019	332
Table 9.7	Top 10 videos on Facebook across Labour, Jeremy Corbyn, the Conservatives, Boris Johnson and Momentum	333
Table 9.8	Parties' political advertising and expenditure on Google and Facebook during the 2019 campaign	334
Table 10.1	Daily newspapers' 2019 partisanship with circulations	349
Table 10.2	Sunday newspapers' 2019 partisanship with circulations	351
Table 10.3	Top 20 online news brands among UK news users (Adapted from Fletcher et al., A Mile Wide, an Inch Deep)	354
Table 10.4	Front-page lead stories, 30 October–12 December	361
Table 10.5	Front-page items about the election, 2010–2019	374
Table 10.6	The key issues in the 2019 general election (weekday press coverage 7 November–12 December inclusive)	377
Table 11.1	Number (and percentage) of women elected by party 2015–2019	401
Table 11.2	Women and non-binary candidates by party, numbers (and percentages) 2019	402
Table 11.3	2019 MPs' age distributions by party	406
Table 11.4	MPs' school background in 2019 (change from 2017)	407
Table 11.5	Highest educational qualification of MPs and candidates by party (percentage)	408
Table 11.6	Undergraduate fields of study of MPs by party (percentage)	409
Table 11.7	Occupation for MPs immediately prior to their first election to the Commons	411
Table 12.1	The 2019 general election result in Scotland	434
Table 12.2	Scotland's four tribes, 2019 (change from 2017)	435
Table 12.3	The 2019 general election result in Wales	440
Table 12.4	2019 General election vote choice by EU referendum vote intention, Wales	441

Table 12.5	The 2019 general election result in Northern Ireland	448
Table 12.6	Long-term constitutional preference for Northern Ireland, by party voted for (percentage)	452
Table 12.7	Religion of each party's voters, 2019 general election in Northern Ireland (percentage)	453
Table 13.1	Party performance by estimated outcome of the 2016 EU referendum, England and Wales	464
Table 13.2	Party performance by estimated outcome of the 2016 EU referendum and the winning party in 2017, England and Wales	466
Table 13.3	2019 Vote by 2017 vote among Leave voters by whether or not Brexit Party stood	471
Table 13.4	Mean change in Conservative and Labour share of the vote 2017–2019 by incumbency status of candidate, England and Wales	480
Table 13.5	Party performance by estimated outcome of the 2016 EU referendum, Scotland	481
Table 13.6	Mean change in % turnout 2017–2019 by estimated outcome of the 2016 EU referendum and winning party 2017, England and Wales	483
Table 13.7	How the outcome of the election in seats differed from a uniform swing projection	485
Table 14.1	Demographics of the 2019 vote in England and Wales (BES post-election survey)	502
Table 14.2	Demographics of the vote in Scotland, BESIP, wave 19 (post-election wave)	516
Table 14.3	List of focus groups in England, Wales and Scotland during or soon after the 2019 election campaign	524
Table A1.1	Measures of change in support since 2017	578
Table A1.2	Green Performance 2015–2019 by Estimated EU Referendum Vote in England and Wales	584
Table A1.3	Change in Conservative, Labour and Liberal Democrat support, 2005–2015 and 2015–2019 by EU Referendum Vote	590

Table A1.4	Average Conservative, Labour and Liberal Democrat Share of the Vote, 2005, 2015 and 2019, by EU Referendum Vote	592
Table A1.5	Conservative, Labour and Liberal Democrat support, 2019, and change in support 2005–2019, by % Working Class	593
Table A1.6	Relationship between votes and seats following the 2019 general election	596
Table A2.1	Votes and seats, 1945–2019	606
Table A2.2	Party performance (UK)	608
Table A2.3	Party performance (Northern Ireland)	609
Table A2.4	National and regional results	610
Table A2.5	Constituency results	613
Table A2.6	Seats changing hands	638
Table A2.7	Exceptional results	639
Table A2.8	By-election results, 2017–2019	646

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

Photographs

People’s Vote protesters march on Parliament, 23 June 2018 (© Simon Dawson/Getty Images)	121
Jeremy Corbyn and John McDonnell at the Labour conference, 23 September 2019 (© Chris Bull/Alamy Stock Photo)	142
‘First @TheIndGroup meal out before votes tonight at Nando’s!’, 26 February 2019 (@ChukaUmunna/Twitter, https://twitter.com/ ChukaUmunna/status/1100121204093009921?s=20)	163
Leave supporters on the first leg of the March to Leave from Sunderland to Hartlepool, 16 March 2019 (© Kevin J Frost/Alamy stock photo)	165
Nigel Farage speaks at the launch of the Brexit Party at a metal factory in Coventry, 12 April 2019 (© Tommy London/Alamy stock photo)	167
New Liberal Democrat party leader Jo Swinson with her MPs on the beach in Bournemouth during the party’s 2019 conference (© PA Images/Alamy stock photo)	179
Boris Johnson speaking at the Conservative Party general election campaign launch, Birmingham NEC, 6 November 2019 (© PA Images/Alamy Stock Photo)	195

Jewish Chronicle front cover splash, 8 November 2019 (© Jewish Chronicle)	200
Leader-focused campaigning—Jo Swinson speaking in front of the ‘Jo Swinson’s Liberal Democrats’ battle bus, Kirkintilloch, 22 November 2019 (© Colin Fisher/Alamy Stock Photo)	202
Jeremy Corbyn holds a redacted copy of the Department for International Trade’s UK-US Trade and Investment Working Group readout, Westminster, 27 November 2019 (© PA Images/Alamy Stock Photo)	224
Donald Trump and Boris Johnson at the NATO leaders summit in Watford, 4 December 2019 (© Reuters/Alamy Stock Photo)	226
Boris Johnson holds a fish during a campaign visit to Grimsby fish market, 9 December 2019 (© Reuters/Alamy Stock Photo)	244
Johnson on a JCB (© Ben Stansall/Getty Images)	250
Johnson hammers home the message in South Benfleet, 11 December 2019 (© Reuters/Alamy Stock Photo)	254
‘The morning after the night before’ (A whiteboard in Labour’s Southside HQ, where the party kept track of seats about to change hands using real-time sampling data from across the country, showing the scale of the defeat)	261
Jeremy Corbyn speaks after the results are announced for the Islington North constituency (© PA Images/Alamy Stock Photo)	262
Boris Johnson speaks from the count at Uxbridge, with vanquished competitors including Lord Buckethead and Count Binface looking on (© Alamy/Stock Photo)	264
Boris Johnson and Scottish Conservative leader Ruth Davidson embrace after the BBC One ‘Great Debate’ on the EU referen- dum, 22 June 2016 (© PA Images/Alamy Stock Photo)	424
Social Media Posts
@CCHQPress Twitter account rebranded as ‘FactCheckUK’	331
@Peston tweet on ‘punch that wasn’t’	336

@PaulBrandITV tweet on ‘punch that wasn’t’	336
Deleted @BBCLauraK tweet on ‘punch that wasn’t’	337
@BBCLauraK apology tweet regarding ‘punch that wasn’t’	338
@Peston apology tweet regarding ‘punch that wasn’t’	339

Party Advertisements

‘Boris’s Brexit Deal—Oven-Ready’ (© Conservative Party)	196
SNP campaign poster ‘Its Time To Decide’ (© Scottish National Party)	433

Cartoons

Conservative leadership debates (Morten Morland, Sunday Times , 16 June 2019 © Morten Morland)	4
‘Made it Ma! King of the World!’ (Dave Brown, The Independent , 25 July 2019 © Dave Brown)	7
Boris walks into the bear trap (Christian Adams, Evening Standard , 19 July 2019 © Christian Adams)	10
‘December election’ (Ben Jennings The i paper, 25 October 2019 © Ben Jennings)	18
‘Cabinet discipline in tatters’ (Nicola Jennings, The Guardian , 1 July 2018 © Nicola Jennings)	41
‘Second Referendum’ (Martin Rowson, The Guardian , 12 November 2018 © Martin Rowson)	45
‘Support my deal or else!’ (Ben Jennings, The i paper, 24 November 2018 © Ben Jennings)	49
‘Nothing has changed!’ (Morten Morland, Sunday Times , 20 January 2019 © Morten Morland)	52
‘Zen-like calm’ (Martin Rowson, The Guardian , 12 April 2019 © Martin Rowson)	55

‘Nearly...within...reach...’ (Dave Brown, The Independent , 15 October 2019 © Dave Brown)	61
‘Hour Glass’ (Nicola Jennings, The Guardian , 3 October 2017 © Nicola Jennings)	78
‘Snowball’ (Ben Jennings, The i paper, 2 March 2018 © Ben Jennings)	81
‘Life Cycle of the May Fly’ (Christian Adams, Evening Standard , 18 March 2019 © Christian Adams)	91
‘May resignation’ (Ben Jennings, The i paper, 25 May 2019 © Ben Jennings)	95
‘Doing the Maths’ (Brian Adcock, The Independent , 27 May 2019 © Brian Adcock)	97
‘Corbyn at Glastonbury’ (Ben Jennings, The i paper, 30 June 2017 © Ben Jennings)	108
Labour conference 2018 (Ben Jennings, The Guardian , 23 September 2018 © Ben Jennings)	123
‘Cross-party talks continue’ (Dave Brown, The Independent , 9 May 2019 © Dave Brown)	127
‘Our position is perfectly clear...’ (Chris Riddell, The Observer , 21 September 2019 © Chris Riddell)	129
‘The Constant Gardner’ (Brian Adcock, The Independent , 1 April 2018 © Brian Adcock)	134
‘Brexit Acrobatics’ (Dave Brown, The Independent , 18 September 2019 © Dave Brown)	140
‘Cableman’ (Brian Adcock, The Independent , 18 September 2018 © Brian Adcock)	161
‘Taking the plunge...?’ (Dave Brown, The Independent , 22 February 2019 © Dave Brown)	164