Preface

Spring 2020, the start of the pandemic in Europe marks a new era. Scared, I wake up during the night, grab my pen and start writing. A plot and some images come to mind. A feeling of being loved and carried fills me. There is nothing to fear, everything is orchestrated by something deeply benevolent.

The next day, nature continues to carry this message: the birds sing aloud and attest to this change. The light chases the night away and a new perception takes place: “Everything is at its right place; although it doesn’t always seem to look like it.”

I spend a few nights writing. The story is revealed and I decide to share it with my friend Fabienne. She encourages me to keep writing and to follow my inspiration. A few nights later, the text is finished. It relates the story of an improbable encounter between a fox and a little girl.

Months went by. As I write these lines, my partner Vital is engaged in the layout of this book. I am touched by his dedication and love making sure that everything is in its right place. It reminds me of the message of this book: that we, humans, are carried when we focus on what we really want, what we love and let our steps be guided by inspiration.

“Faith is a connection of the highest inner simplicity to the cosmic flow of life, to the all-encompassing divine power which is life and for which nothing is impossible.”

Bruno Gröning
