Niemczyk, Niesobia (Krzywosąd, Słodziej, Thieves) - a coat of arms of the nobility . One of the oldest and most dignified Polish coats of arms. Immortalized in her cave, the monastery in Łąd.

A two-part shield in a strip, in the first field of a red silver croissant, with a golden black eagle tail ending in the second field , in the piece of jewelry there are three ostrich feathers

There is a court record from 1424 and a medieval seal from 1357 and 1363 Wierzbięta of Paniewice

The origin of the coat of arms goes back to the 11th century - the rule of Casimir the Restorer. The likely reason for the award was an accurate prediction of the outcome of the battle with the Czechs by one of the royal colonels (the prediction of this outcome was associated with the shooting of the tail of a black eagle - hence the image of an arrow and a black eagle's tail in the coat of arms) . The name of the coat of arms probably comes from the name of the Niesób river on which the battle took place.
