The noble Polish family Odyniec

Odyniec. In a blue field a vertical, silver, featherless arrow, the shaft of which is crossed by a short bar, then broken at the bottom diagonally; sometimes the arrow is still elevated with a golden star; Helmet decoration: five ostrich feathers. About the origin it is said: In the battles against the Tatars there was a soldier in the Russian army who was very strong, took on the strongest man in a struggle, and distinguished himself against the enemy through bravery and successes. In the Russian lands it was customary to call a very strong man Odyniec (wild boar), and that was the general name of the soldier; in a fight he shot the leader of the Tatars who fled; the Fiihrer's corpse was found in which the arrow was broken. The prince gave the soldier this coat of arms, which, like himself, he called Odyniec. Do the same thing:

Barynowski, Bohusz, Brozowiecki, Brzozowiecki, Burba, Holcowski, Odyniec, Odynski, Szostowicki, Szyszka, Wislouch.

In the blue field a silver arrow without feathers, with the iron pointing upwards, with a silver crossbar in the middle. The arrow at its end is broken and bent obliquely upwards to the right. The jewel contains five ostrich feathers.

Labry adorns the coat of arms - blue, lined with silver.

- (The coat of arms is available in three variants.)
- Piotr Nałęcz Małachowski in his book - The Collection of Names of the Nobility mentions the Knight Szyszka - Deputy to the Lithuanian Tribunal from 1679 , using this coat of arms.

- Bahrymowski, Barynowski, Bnozowiecki, Bohusz, Brzozowiecki, Burlo-Burdzicki, Dobrowolski, Holcowski, Odyniec, Odyniecki, Odyńcewicz, Omeliński, Omyliński, Rafalowicz, Rasałowicz, Rykala, Szyszko-Bohusz, Szostowski, Wysłouch, Ząbkowski. -

Bnozowiecki of the Odyniec coat of arms (vol. 11 p. 34)

Bnozowiecki of the coat of arms of Odyniec. Małachowski lists them.

Bohusz of the Odyniec coat of arms (vol. 2 pp. 208-209)

Bohusz of the Odyniec coat of arms. Kojalowicz clearly writes in MS about the Bohusz of the Odyniec coat of arms. that they are in Brzesko Litewski. I know that they moved to Lithuania from the Kiev Voivodeship, from where Bohusz Hieronim Kazimierz von Towsko the Horodian Kowieński, Stefan Bohusz Okmiński, a teaser and judge of the city of Vitebski, who was led by Jan III. signed by August II elections. Hulkiwicz Bohusz the sword-bearer of Minsk left from Niemierzycowny: and earlier Bohusz Aleksander had his Wołoska banner from 1658. also in the computer of the Olszacki army near Czarnecki.

Andrzej and Michał Bohusz in 1700 at the General Assembly of Citizens of W. Ks. Ignited. wrote one from Kaunas County and the other from Minsk Voivodeship. Dominik Bohusz obożny Wiłkomierski in 1769. Michał Ksawery Bohusz, Cantor of Vilnius, Knight of St. Stanislaus. Ignacy Swordnik Wileński was a member of the Sejm from the Smolensk Voivodeship in Warsaw in 1778 and died there that same year. Józef Bohusz, Starost von Lübeck, Knight of the Order of S. Stanisław. Władysław Krajczy Starodubowski, Adam Konasz Wiłkomierski 1792. Aleksander, the regional regent of Bielski 1793. Heraldry of Wielądek.

Niesiecki placed this Bohuszów with the Siestrzeniec coat of arms, but later under the coat of arms of Odyniec, by mentioning the Bohusz coat of arms of the Odyniec coat of arms, he sent the reader to describe what he had placed over the Bohusz coat of arms von Siestrzeniec - if other authors of the same Bohusz coat of arms are included in Odyniec, I will also use them here, especially since Wielądek in heraldry separately and in detail on [p. 209] Bohuszach Siestrzeńcewiczach vom Strzała coat of arms writes: This description, which contains many interesting things and is mainly based on Paprocki's work, is literal here. -

Brzozowiecki of the Odyniec coat of arms (vol. 2 p. 337)

Brzozowiecki of the coat of arms of Odyniec . Brzozowiecki Jakub, who loved a small stature, was so brave that in Barsztein he smashed a German of enormous size, dressed in armor, in a skirmish and brought him to the king. What about Bielski fol. 546. and Wapowski. Maciej, a courtier of the Roman prince Ruthenian, a brave man, as Paprocki praises him. Others write it from Brozowiecki.

Coat of arms of Odyniec (vol. 7 pp. 47-48)

Odyniec coat of arms. In the blue field there should be a white arrow, engraved with an iron straight up, with a cross through its center, bottom right, bent so that the end of the feather cannot be seen, five ostrich feathers on the helmet, as they describe it, Paproc. in fol. 1190. For the coat of arms. F. 680. Approximately bar 2. f. 316. in the book Jewels, both ends of the arrows, both above and below, broken on the left, without feathers and iron. It was reassuring. at MS. he says the area of the shield should be red and there should only be three ostrich feathers on the helmet. This coat of arms of the princes of Ruthenia was given to a brave soldier who not only suited strong people, but also himself as an odyssey, with bow and saber only an enemy army went to meet him, and so he was called Odin
