About the author

I was born and studied in Romania. After my studies I obtained my engineering degree. After university I worked for several years as an engineer in Romania and then settled in Germany. Here I attended for several years specialisation courses in computer science. I have always enjoyed studying and experimenting with new things autodidactically. That is why I have always had several extracurricular interests that I have pursued with passion, including sports, painting and the study of various scientific disciplines. I have been practising spirituality for more than twenty years and for some years I have also been writing. The works I have written arise from a holistic way of thinking and from my unconditional, immeasurable and eternal love for all human beings.

I. Introduction

In this paper I present information about the Earth we live on. This information is quite astonishing to the average man because it doesn't agree with what you learn in school, high school or college, nor with astronomy books or what you hear, read or see in the media. This information will surprise even the most educated, informed and openminded people. That is why it will cause many readers to experience the phenomenon of cognitive dissonance, which consists in their firm rejection and the impression that they have been produced by the fantasy of a man with a boundless imagination. However, all this information is in line with reality. I therefore recommend that you do not allow yourself to be misled by the feeling that they are pure fantasy, but that you read them carefully to the end because all this information is scientific in nature, is consistent with truth and reality, has logical continuity, you can perceive it yourself, you can prove it experimentally yourself, it is supported by unquestionable evidence and it makes sense. My recommendation is to read this work very carefully at least twice. After the first reading I recommend that you investigate for yourself in the real world both by careful observation and perception of the phenomena explained in this work and possibly by experimentation. After that, it is good to read this work again to understand the phenomena in depth and to be able to make the necessary connections correctly. This book is currently the only book on this planet that provides a model of the Flat Earth that matches reality and in which all explanations are expressed in a scientific, coherent and understandable way. In addition, in this book are the experimental methods by which you can convince yourself that my statements are correct.

Note:

In this work, the images are not made to scale because they are representations of very large dimensions, usually they are representations of terrestrial or cosmic dimensions in relation to small dimensions, for example relief or buildings. Because these images represent very large dimensions in relation to small dimensions it is very difficult, in most cases impossible, to represent them to scale. The images in this paper provide additional information to understand the ideas they refer to.

II. Historical Summary

On our planet, humanity has for a long time been held in slavery by a handful of people calling themselves emperors, kings, queens, pharaohs, presidents of states and authorities. The authorities have always used violence, terror and fear to keep people in slavery. To escape from this slavery, the people had only three options: revolt, escape from the master's territory and death. There was no other alternative. There were people who chose the first option. With the weapons they had at hand, they tried to free themselves from the ruthless slavery that was destroying their lives, their families and their entire community. Most of the time, however, they were defeated and had to suffer the consequences of their rebellion, which were torture, slavery, imprisonment and death. They were defeated because the authorities had many well-armed slaves on their side who they put to fight against the rebellious slaves. Other slaves, fed up with the miserable life of slavery, chose the second option: the road of wandering. Some were caught and sent back into slavery, others died on the way, but not a few found hospitable and unpopulated territories where they could settle, build a new community and live in freedom. The third category of slaves was made up of slaves who were so bitter about their situation that they chose death by suicide.

The authorities knew that some slaves were leaving their estates and realised that slavery had to be not only physical but also mental. In order to defeat the will of the slaves to flee from their estates, the authorities told the people that the horizon line is the edge of the world and whoever ventures into the unknown and crosses this edge will fall into the endless abyss of the cosmos and be lost forever. Believing this, people were afraid to venture into the unknown, they gave up the thought of leaving and accepted their fate of remaining poor and humble slaves forever. During this time, the authorities sent well-equipped ships out to sea to search out distant territories in the hope of finding new territories, wealth and slaves. The lie of the authorities was believed for a very long time, for hundreds of years, but there came a time when people realised that the horizon line is not the edge of the world because the higher you rise, the more territory you see. Consequently, if the observer's eyes go higher and higher, the horizon line recedes and therefore it cannot be the edge of the world as the authorities preached. In the meantime, the authorities have developed their sea navigation. People did not have the courage to build large boats to sail out to sea because they feared they would fall into the endless abyss of the cosmos.

In this way, the authorities of the world began to work together to develop a common force and thus be better able to exercise their authority to keep people enslaved. But the authorities had a problem! People no longer believed that the horizon was the edge of the world and tended to create plans to wander off in the hope of finding a better place under the Sun. So the authorities had to create another theory that would destroy the slaves' hope of finding new territories. This gave rise to the astronomical theory of the spherical Earth, which says that the Earth is a sphere, that it floats in outer space, and that it is so far away from the other planets that it is impossible for ordinary people to get through. This theory was introduced in school so that, as young children, people believed it and never had any hope of ever escaping from slavery. Lately, more and more people understand that the authorities' astronomical theory is wrong and that the Earth is flat. That is why the authorities are currently playing both ends. Some people of the authorities are still trying to maintain the astronomical theory of a spherical Earth, other people of the same authorities admit that the Earth is flat but go on to say that it would be covered by a dome suggesting to people that there would be no hope of escaping their clutches. Fortunately for humans, the Creator of the Universe created the Earth in such a way that humans can never be made slaves and when this is attempted, they may leave for other lands to live in freedom. The Earth is neither spherical nor bounded. The earth is flat, immobile and infinite. On the Flat, Immobile and Infinite Earth there are a huge number of territories similar to our planet.

Beyond Antarctica lie new planets. An increasing number of documents are appearing lately, such as photos and videos taken in China and North America showing two suns instead of just one. One of them is our Sun, while the other is the Sun belonging to a neighbouring planet. This is not the optical illusion where three lights appear: one in the middle which is the sun and two on the sides which appear to be half suns. The two suns that appeared in China and North America are two distinct and real suns. The world's authorities are well aware that the Earth is flat. You can figure this out by looking at their flags, emblems and logos on which the Earth is depicted as flat.

These logos are: the emblem of the United Nations (UN), of the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), of the International Maritime Organization (IMO), of the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) and of the World Health Organization (WHO). Knowing that the Earth is flat, authorities have always suspected that new territories lie beyond the high ice walls of Antarctica.

Numerous expeditions have been organised to reach the southern polar region, to set foot on Antarctica and to build colonies there. Between 1946 and 1947, the US-sponsored Operation Highjump (OpHjp) was the largest expedition to Antarctica. This operation began in August 1946, was organised by the Freemason Admiral Richard E. Byrd and was co-financed by the Rockefeller house. An armada of 5,000 men, 13 naval vessels and 26 aircraft participated in the operation. On his return home Admiral Richard E. Byrd gave television interviews in which he revealed that beyond the South Pole lay a continent larger than North America. Because he said more than he should have, he was hospitalized and killed at the behest of his older Masonic brothers. The activities in Antarctica are governed by the Antarctic Treaty and some 200 additional agreements signed by several countries around the world. The articles of the Antarctic Treaty set out excellent strategic objectives, such as that Antarctica should always be used for peaceful purposes and for the benefit of all mankind. From a vast historical experience, everyone knows that everything that the authorities put down in writing, whether treaties or laws, is dust in the eyes of the people.

There are many indications suggesting that the exploration of Antarctica is severely constrained by the need for a permit and by the military personnel stationed in Antarctica. Information, which cannot be confirmed from independent and competent sources, says that tourism on one's own is practically forbidden in Antarctica, that private and unauthorised flights over Antarctica are prohibited, and that independent researchers who have attempted to explore Antarctica, such as Norwegian Jarle Andhøy (b. 23.10.1977) and his crew, have been threatened with violence, arrested or even killed. According to these indications, the authorities are preparing an encirclement of humanity by placing military bases in Antarctica in order to prevent people from migrating to the new territories.

The worst situation for the authorities is when enslaved people leave the territory they control and migrate to new territories because, in this case, those who form the authorities will have to work themselves in order to support themselves, which would be a disastrous situation for them considering that they have never worked. The world's super-rich have already built residences in the new territories beyond Antarctica.

They travel to these territories by rocket, plane and land transport. The manned RSRM (Reusable Solid Rocket Motor and Solid Rocket Boosters) rockets built by NASA consist of an orbiter, which is actually an aircraft, and tubes containing solid fuel.

These rockets are reusable. They are launched and lift off to a very high altitude. After this the fuel tubes are disconnected and the so-called orbiter, which is actually an aircraft, flies with its own engines to new territories. This can be seen from the fact that the trajectory of these rockets becomes a curve pointing towards the ground. The 'scientific' authorities say that the trajectory of the rockets looks like a curve because these rockets fly parallel to the curve of the earth. The curve of the Earth does not exist because the Earth is flat. The rockets fly on a curved trajectory to steer the plane towards new territories. Sometimes the world's super-rich want to travel to the new territories using ground vehicles. In addition to other purposes, Antarctic bases serve as intermediate stations for ground transport to new territories. Some people ask the following question: Why do the masters of the world destroy or allow the destruction of our planet? Why are the air, water and soil poisoned? Why are forests being destroyed? These things will affect them too!

The answer to this question is very simple. The masters of the world have residences in territories beyond Antarctica where there is excellent air, water and soil. They don't care what happens on this planet. The super-rich of the World use this planet as a surface and deep mine from which they extract with the help of humans and robots the raw materials they need. They also use it as a production site. Humans are their slaves.

III: Etymology

In our age, which can rightly be considered the age of lies, people are convinced that the Earth is a convex-shaped object and that it executes various motions, not because they can provide explanations based on their senses and observations in favour of this bizarre assumption, but because so-called science has indoctrinated them from an early age to believe that only its abstract and false terms would be real and nothing that is obvious to human perceptions would be true. In the following I will explain the etymology of the main terms used in this book.

Earth

In Romanian, the word Pământ (Earth) is related to the Latin term pavementum which means: hard-packed and levelled ground, flagstone or mosaic floor, pavement, floor, paved road and smooth place. All these latter notions describe very accurately the land we live on. The convex-heliocentric theory starts from the false assumption that the Earth is convex in shape. The Earth does not have a convex shape, but is perfectly flat when you remove landforms such as mountains, volcanoes, hills, valleys, ripples on the surface of the water and undulating crust on the surface of the Earth.

Tellus

The Latin term Tellus means Earth. The etymology of this term is uncertain. It seems to be related to the Sanskrit term talam which means: flat land and plain. Interestingly, in ancient Roman religion and myths there was both the term Tellus Mater and Terra Mater. This could mean that ancient people made a distinction between Earth and Planet. It is possible that the Latin term Tellus Mater referred to the Earth as an infinite area on which a multitude of planets are found. The Latin term Terra Mater is known to refer to the planet on which we live. In other words, the term Tellus Mater could have meant Mother Earth, while the term Terra Mater could have meant Mother Planet.

Planet

The term planet is related to the Latin term planus which means flat, level, even, plain. This term indicates that the planet is flat.

Sferoid

The term spheroid comes from the merging of the term sphere with the suffix oid. The suffix oid has the following semification: in the shape of. The term spheroid means: in the shape of a sphere or a sphere-like shape.

Geoid

The term geoid comes from the merging of the term geo with the suffix oid. The term geo is related to the term gaia and means: land, territory and soil. It can be used as a prefix to form nouns such as geography, geology, geometry, etc. The suffix oid has the meaning: in the form of.

Oblat

The term oblate is an adjective. It is related to the Latin term oblatum. The Latin term oblatum is derived by joining the term ob with the term latus. The term ob means: from edge to edge, along and across. The term latus means wide. The term oblat like the term oblatum means: more wide than long.

Oblong

The term oblong is an adjective. It is related to the Latin term oblongus. The Latin term oblongus is derived by joining the term ob with the term longus. The term ob means: from edge to edge, along and across. The term longus means long. The term oblong as oblongus means: longer than wide.

Sun

In many languages the word Sun begins with the letter S.
