

The Palgrave Handbook of African Men and Masculinities

Edited by

Ezra Chitando · Obert Bernard Mlambo
Sakhumzi Mfecane · Kopano Ratele

palgrave
macmillan

The Palgrave Handbook of African Men and Masculinities

Ezra Chitando
Obert Bernard Mlambo
Sakhumzi Mfecane • Kopano Ratele
Editors

The Palgrave Handbook of African Men and Masculinities

palgrave
macmillan

Editors

Ezra Chitando
Department of Philosophy, Religion
and Ethics
University of Zimbabwe
Harare, Zimbabwe

Obert Bernard Mlambo
Department of Philosophy, Religion
and Ethics
University of Zimbabwe
Harare, Zimbabwe

Sakhumzi Mfecane
Department of Anthropology
University of the Western Cape
Cape Town, South Africa

Kopano Ratele
Department of Psychology
Stellenbosch University
Stellenbosch, South Africa

ISBN 978-3-031-49166-5 ISBN 978-3-031-49167-2 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-031-49167-2>

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s), under exclusive license to Springer Nature Switzerland AG 2024

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors, and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, expressed or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Switzerland AG.

The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

Paper in this product is recyclable.

The original version of the book has been revised. An abstract was placed in the FM erroneously which is removed now.

CONTENTS

1	Introduction: African Men and Masculinities	1
	Ezra Chitando, Obert Bernard Mlambo, Sakhumzi Mfecane, and Kopano Ratele
Part I	African Masculinities: Theoretical Explorations	31
2	Conceptualising African Masculinity Studies	33
	Kopano Ratele
3	Hegemonic Masculinity and African Masculinity Studies	49
	Sakhumzi Mfecane
4	Men and Masculinity Studies in East Africa: A Theoretical Framework for Understanding Masculinities-Focused Interventions	75
	Asasira Simon Rwabyoma, Roberts Kabeba Muriisa, Dunlop O. Ochieng, and Jolly Rubagiza
5	Emergent Masculinities in Africa: Case Studies from Sierra Leone	91
	Kristen E. McLean and Marcia C. Inhorn

6	“Man-Africanism,” African Women and the Field of Masculinities: Some Reflections	113
	Ama Biney
7	The Transformative Masculinities Agenda in Africa: Confessions of an Activist	139
	Ezra Chitando
Part II	African Masculinities and Embodiment	159
8	Emerging Alternative Young Black Masculinities in South Africa	161
	Malose Langa and Bandile Bertrand Leopeng
9	To Be a Man in a World of Sighted Men, You Have to Be Man Enough: Thomas Mtonga’s Narrative of Living Blind in Zambia	175
	Joseph Chita and Gilbert Kamanga
10	Masculine Identities in Bukusu Circumcision Songs	191
	Solomon Waliaula, Joseph Basil Okong’o, and Scolastica Wabende
11	Men and Football in Africa	211
	Manase Kudzai Chiweshe and Tafadzwa Choto
12	Interrogating African Communitarianism from a Feminist Perspective	229
	Munamato Chemhuru
13	Masculinities and Racial Terms of Belonging in Post-colonial Tunis	249
	Karem Said and Amy Kallander
14	Men and Masculinities in Algeria	277
	Elizabeth M. Perego

15	“I Have Got Stamina!” Yoweri K. Museveni, Masculinity and the Physical Right to Rule in Uganda	297
	Ezra Chitando and Obert Bernard Mlambo
Part III African Masculinities and the Arts		313
16	Making Men: Portrayal of Masculinity in Nigerian Children’s Literature	315
	Sunday Ayodabo
17	The Betrayal of Man by Patriarchy: Reading Too Early for Bird’s Play Tom Mboya in the Eyes of Francis Imbuga’s Aminata and John Sibi-Okumu’s Role Play	329
	Fredrick Mbogo
18	Fictional Men: (De)constructing a Military Hero—Military Masculinity, National Identity and Bipolar Disorder in Chimamanda Adichie’s Purple Hibiscus	349
	Ayokunmi O. Ojebode
19	The Problem of ‘Redemptive Masculinity’ in Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie’s Purple Hibiscus	373
	Adriaan van Klinken
20	Two Sides of a Coin: Rethinking the Ideology of Male Gender Violence Within the Prism of Two Nigerian Plays	385
	Cindy Anene Ezeugwu, Kasarachi Collins Okpeh, and Oguejiofor V. Omeje
21	Developing a Route to Big Man Masculinity: Protest Masculinity in Adaobi Tricia Nwaubani’s I Do Not Come to You by Chance	399
	Sarah Ngoh
22	“What Is a Man?”: Queer Masculinities in North African Literature	429
	Gibson Ncube

Part IV	African Masculinities and Religiosities	447
23	Religious Men in Zambian Public Life: Representations of Pentecostal Pastors in the Media	449
	Nelly Mwale
24	African Pentecostal Spiritual Men in the United Kingdom	463
	Nomatter Sande
25	Islam and Masculinities in Africa	477
	Felicitas Becker
26	Evolving Rastafari Masculinities in Southern Africa	499
	Fortune Sibanda and Ezra Chitando
Part V	African Masculinities and Femininities	519
27	The Conception of Masculinity Between Constancy and Change: Case Study of Women's Right to Inherit in Egypt	521
	Yasmin Khodary
28	"If I Had Stayed with My Husband, My Children Would Have No Future": Breadwinner Womanhood in Urban Northern Tanzania	555
	Janine Häbel
29	Understanding Zimbabwean Men's Involvement in Abortion	575
	Malvern Tatenda Chiweshe
30	Changing Masculinities and Femininities for Zimbabwe's Development: A Philosophical Examination	589
	Chipo Mable Hatendi

31	Studying Men and Masculinities in Global Crises: Critical Reflections on COVID-19 ‘Lockdown Masculinities’ in Uganda	605
	Amon Ashaba Mwiine and Jovah Katushabe
Part VI	African Masculinities and Violence	635
32	Military Masculinities and Political Violence in Africa	637
	Godfrey Maringira
33	Liberation War Veterans and Masculinity in Zimbabwe	657
	Obert Bernard Mlambo
34	Men in Politics in Lesotho and Political Masculinity	677
	Tlali Abel Phohlo
35	At the Intersection of Prisons, Masculinities and Violence: Patterns of Masculinities Within Correctional Service Settings in Lesotho	691
	Lekholokoe Paul Leshota, Matinngoe Akim Phamotse, and Tlali Abel Phohlo
Part VII	African Masculinities and Queer Identities	707
36	Dress Codes as Constructs of Male Masculinities in Northern Ghana	709
	Asangba Reginald Taluah
37	Men Who Love Other Men in Malawi	737
	Jones Hamburu Mawerenga
38	African Liberation Theologies and the Flourishing of the LGBTIQ+ Community in Botswana	751
	Tshenolo Jennifer Madigele

39	'Let Us Just Leave': Gossip, Marginality, and Movement Among Gay Men in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania	767
	Jasmine Shio and Eileen Moyer
Part VIII	African Masculinities and Health	787
40	Young African Men and Suicide: An Overview with Special Reference to Spirituality and Social Change	789
	Kudzai Biri
41	Liberation War Veterans' Masculinity and African Traditional Religion in Zimbabwe: Insights into Holistic Health and Well-being	803
	Obert Bernard Mlambo and Mutsawashe Chitando
42	Men and Health in Africa	823
	Jeremiah Chikovore, Emma Shuvai Chikovore, and Donald Skinner
43	From Boys to Men: The Role of Education in Shaping Positive Adolescent Masculinities in East and Southern Africa Region	845
	Patricia Machawira and Remmy Shawa
Part IX	African Masculinities, Family and Work	863
44	Entrepreneurial Masculinities in Nairobi's Low-Income Neighbourhoods: The Case of Mathare Valley	865
	Maurice Oduor Omollo
45	Masculinities and Urban Informality: Negotiating Everyday Masculinities in the Street Food Vending Economy	883
	Isaac Dery and Samuel Twumasi Amoah

46	Theorizing a Necessary Link: Masculinity and Social Sustainability in African Contexts	901
	Kennedy Owino
47	Towards Familial Roles, Culture and Socio-Economic Transformations: Men and Child Care in Botswana	921
	Tshenolo J. Madigele and Ronald Tshelametse
48	‘I am a father’: Masculinities and Paternal Narratives in South Africa and Guinea	933
	Carole Ammann and Linda Musariri
49	Fatherhood in Urban South Africa: The Making of the “Poor, Black man” as the Absentee Father in South African Media	955
	Gavaza Maluleke and Eileen Moyer
50	Social Media Humour Amongst Zimbabweans: Discoursing Gendered Playful Engagements Around Covid-19	975
	Ushehwedu Kufakurinani
	Index	987

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Carole Ammann is a senior researcher at the Institute for Spatial and Landscape Development, ETH Zurich, Switzerland. She has an interdisciplinary background in social anthropology and African studies. Her research interests and publications include masculinities, femininities, intersectionality, fatherhood, queer parenting, secondary cities, and work.

Samuel Twumasi Amoah is a senior lecturer in the Department of Geography, SD Dombo University of Business and Integrated Development Studies, Ghana. He holds a PhD with specialization in Environmental and Geographical Studies from the University of Cape Town, South Africa; an MSc in Human Geography from Lund University, Sweden; and BA in Integrated Development Studies from University for Development Studies, Ghana. His specific research interests include informal livelihood, water and sanitation, urban governance, and waste management. He has published extensively on urban livelihoods particularly street trading and governance, water, sanitation, and solid waste management.

Sunday Ayodabo is a Fellow of the American Council of Learned Societies (ACLS) and currently a researcher at the School of Arts, Technology, and Emerging Communication at the University of Texas, Dallas, US. His research contributions, which include published works, span an array of interdisciplinary fields such as masculinities, children's literature, gender studies, and literary studies. Presently, Ayodabo's academic interests have expanded to encompass queer studies, feminist STS, digital culture, and artificial intelligence, reflecting a broad and dynamic engagement with contemporary scholarly discourses.

Felicitas Becker is Professor of African history at Gent University, Belgium, and a historian of modern East Africa. She holds a PhD from Cambridge University and has previously worked at Simon Fraser University, Vancouver, SOAS London, and Cambridge University. Her work has focused on the history of Islam, the persistence of developmental paradigms despite repeated failure, and the aftermath of slavery in the region. She is the author of Becoming Muslim in Mainland Tanzania (OUP, 2008) and The Politics of Poverty, (CUP, 2019), and her articles have appeared in several journals including Africa, Journal of African History, Journal of Religion in Africa, and Journal of Global History.

Ama Biney is Lecturer in Black British History in the History Department at the University of Liverpool, UK. Her research interests and publications include African political thought, the history of Pan-Africanism, African development, decoloniality, and masculinities.

Kudzai Biri is an associate professor of Global Christianity. She teaches Christianity, Violence and Peace, and Global Christianity. Her research interests are in religion and gender, politics and migration.

Munamoto Chemhuru is Associate Professor of Philosophy in the Philosophy & Religious Studies Department at Great Zimbabwe University and a senior research associate in Philosophy at the Faculty of Humanities, University of Johannesburg in South Africa.

Emma Shuvai Chikovore is postdoctoral research fellow at the South African Research Chair (SARChI) in Economic Development in the School of Built Environment and Development Studies, the University of KwaZulu-Natal, Durban, South Africa. She is also an external research collaborator at the GIRL Centre, an initiative of the Population Council. Her research interests and publications include adolescent sexual and reproductive health, migration, fertility transitions, costing of public health interventions, and family well-being.

Jeremiah Chikovore is a senior researcher at the Human Sciences Research Council, South Africa. His research has primarily addressed men's location in public health across various health issues within Southern Africa, using qualitative and interpretive approaches. He is a former Wellcome Trust Fellow, an NRF-rated researcher, an external research collaborator at the GIRL Centre—Population Council, and a co-founding director of the newly formed Social Science and Health Innovations for TB (SSHIFTB) virtual centre.

Joseph Chita is a lecturer in the Department of Religious Studies at the University of Zambia. His research and publication interests are in religion and society, comparative religion, gender, migration, education, and development.

Ezra Chitando is Professor of History and Phenomenology of Religion at the University of Zimbabwe, Zimbabwe, and has written widely on religion, gender, masculinities, and sexualities. He is the editor/co-editor of several books, including Christianity and Controversies over Homosexuality in Africa; Public Religion and the Politics of Homosexuality in Africa; and Redemptive Masculinities: Men, HIV and Religion. Chitando has completed research fellowships in Germany, Sweden, Scotland, and the USA.

Mutsawashe Chitando is pursuing a PhD in Public Health at the University of Cape Town, South Africa. Her research interests include public health and young people, mental health, religion, and disruptive technologies. As a budding researcher, she strives to contribute to the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals 3 and 5, which aim to promote good health and well-being, as well as gender equality, through policy and advocacy efforts.

Manase Kudzai Chiweshe is a senior lecturer in the Department of Community and Social Development, University of Zimbabwe, and a research associate, in the Department of Sociology, Rhodes University, South Africa. He won the 2015 Gerti Hesseling Prize for Best Paper Published in African Studies. His work revolves around the sociology of everyday life in African spaces, specifically promoting African ways of knowing with a specific interest in sport, gender, identity, land, and livelihoods.

Malvern Tatenda Chiweshe is a research associate at the Critical Studies in Sexualities and Reproduction program at Rhodes University in South Africa. Malvern holds a Ph.D. in Psychology and an MA in Clinical Psychology from Rhodes University, South Africa. Chiweshe also holds a Master's in Public Health with a concentration in Women's and Reproductive Health and Certificates in Adolescent Health, and Maternal and Child Health from the Bloomberg School of Public Health at Johns Hopkins. Previously, he was a Senior Data Analyst at Clinigma, Denmark, where he led the development and analysis of mixed methods research focused on patient-reported outcomes in rare disease clinical trials. He has also worked as a postdoctoral fellow for the Critical Studies in Sexualities and Reproduction program at Rhodes University in South Africa and the Department of Social Policy at the London School of Economics, UK. As a postdoctoral fellow and independent consultant, he has worked on projects on sexual violence, contraception, African feminism, abortion, maternal and child health, and adolescent health. He has published work in Feminism & Psychology, Agenda, African Journal of Reproductive Health, Journal of Health Psychology, Journal of Family and Reproductive Health, International Journal of Behavior Medicine and Journal of Aggression, Conflict and Peace Research.

Tafadzwa Blessing Choto is a sociologist and a lecturer in the Department of Community Studies at the Midlands State University in Gweru, Zimbabwe. He is currently a PhD Student in the Department of Sociology/Social Development at the University of Zimbabwe, focusing on women's experiences with football in Zimbabwe and its utility as a contrivance for gender development. His research interests are primarily in the Sociology of Sports, specifically on football fandom and gender and sports.

Isaac Dery is a lecturer and researcher in the Department of African and Endogenous Studies, SD Dombo University of Business and Integrated Development Studies, Ghana. His research focuses broadly on men and masculinities, social subjectivities, violence, gender and suicide, etc.

Cindy Anene Ezeugwu is a lecturer in Theatre and Film Studies Department, University of Nigeria, Nsukka. Her research interests and publications include gender and sexuality studies, theatre for development, eco-theatre and climate change, cultural studies, conflict management and traditional African drama and theatre.

Janine Häbel is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Amsterdam, Netherlands. She explores the intricate intersections of gender, sexualities, and secrecy that arose in her research with women in Northern Tanzania.

Chipo Mable Hatendi is Lecturer in Africana Studies at Cal Poly Humboldt State University. She holds a PhD in Applied Ethics from the University of Zimbabwe. Her areas of expertise include applied ethics, Africana studies and women, gender and sexuality studies. She has publications in these areas.

Marcia C. Inhorn, PhD, MPH is the William K. Lanman Jr. Professor of Anthropology and International Affairs in the Department of Anthropology and The Whitney and Betty MacMillan Center for International and Area Studies at Yale University, where she serves as chair of the Council on Middle East Studies. A medical anthropologist specializing in gender, technology, and reproductive health issues, Inhorn has conducted research on the social impact of infertility and assisted reproductive technologies in the Middle East (Egypt, Lebanon, the United Arab Emirates) and Arab America over the past 35 years. She is the author of six award-winning books on the subject, including The New Arab Man: Emergent Masculinities, Technologies, and Islam in the Middle East (Princeton University Press, 2012) and America's Arab Refugees: Vulnerability and Health on the Margins (Stanford University Press, 2018). She is also the (co)editor of 13 books, the founding editor of the Journal of Middle East Women's Studies (JMEWS), and co-editor of the Berghahn Book series on "Fertility, Reproduction, and Sexuality". Inhorn is past president of the Society for Medical Anthropology and former executive board member of the Middle East Studies Association. Her recently completed research projects include the Wellcome Trust funded "Changing (In)Fertilities" grant with Sarah Franklin (University of Cambridge), and a US National Science Foundation funded study of oocyte cryopreservation (egg freezing) for fertility preservation. Her new book, Motherhood on Ice: The Mating Gap and Why Women Are Freezing Their Eggs, appeared in May 2023 from NYU Press.

Amy Kallander is Professor of History and affiliated faculty with Women's and Gender Studies at Syracuse University. A scholar of early modern and modern Middle East history, she is the author of Tunisia's Modern Woman: Nation-Building and State Feminism in the Global 1960s (Cambridge 2021) and Women, Gender, and the Palace Household in Ottoman Tunisia (Texas 2013). These works place gender in relation to social history and political power, population politics, fashion, consumerism, and love. She has authored articles and book chapters exploring the role of social media in Tunisian social movements, postcolonial and transnational relations with France, appearing in Middle East Report Online, Arab Media & Society, French, Politics, Culture and Society and The Tunisian Revolution: Contexts, Architects, Prospects (Edinburgh 2013).

Gilbert Kamanga is a lecturer in the Department of Religious Studies at the University of Zambia. He is also a PhD candidate under the UNESCO/University of Zambia Intangible Cultural Heritage PhD Project Grant. His research interests include religion, education, politics, society and intangible culture.

Jovah Katushabe is a research associate at the Center for Basic Research, Kampala, and an executive director, CRIMM (Critical Research in Men and Masculinities) Research Center, Kampala, Uganda. She holds a Master of Arts in Gender studies, from Makerere University. She specializes in training young researchers and graduate students in critical reading, writing and analysis, feminist research, and qualitative ways of researching men and masculinities. Her research interests are in feminist geography, masculinities, and women's land rights.

Yasmin Khodary is Professor of Comparative Politics in the British University in Egypt. She is the Winner of Abdul Hameed Shoman Award for Arab Researchers. Her research interests include gender studies, governance, peace-building, women's rights, and more broadly development in the Middle East.

Adriaan van Klinken is Professor of Religion and African Studies at the University of Leeds. He serves as director of the Leeds University Centre for African Studies and the Centre for Religion and Public Life. He also is an extraordinary professor in the Desmond Tutu Centre for Religion and Social Justice, University of the Western Cape, South Africa. He holds a PhD in Religious Studies from Utrecht University, the Netherlands (2011). Adriaan's research focuses on religion, gender, and sexuality in contemporary Africa. His books include Transforming Masculinities in African Christianity: Gender Controversies in Times of AIDS (2013) and Kenyan, Christian, Queer: Religion, LGBT Activism and Arts of Resistance in Africa (2019). He recently co-authored with Ezra Chitando, Reimagining Christianity and Sexual Diversity in Africa (2021), and with Johanna Stiebert, Sebyala Brian and Fredrick Hudson, Sacred Queer Stories: Ugandan LGBTQ+ Refugee Lives and the Bible (2021).

Ushewedu Kufakurinani is a Social and Economic Historian trained at the University of Zimbabwe. He held positions of a senior lecturer and chairperson of the then-Economic History Department. He is currently Lecturer in Health and Development at the University of Sussex, and affiliated to the School of History at the University of St. Andrews both found in the United Kingdom. Kufakurinani is also affiliated to the Department of Anthropology and Development Studies at the University of Johannesburg, South Africa, and the Department of History, Archaeology and Development Studies at Great Zimbabwe University.

Malose Langa is a professor and senior lecturer in the School of Community and Human Development, Department of Psychology, at the University of Witwatersrand, South Africa, and associate researcher at the Centre for the Study of Violence and Reconciliation (CSV). His research interests include risk-taking behaviours amongst the youth and their role in politics, substance abuse and addiction, trauma of collective violence and the psychology of men (masculinity), fatherhood in post-apartheid South Africa. He has published book chapters and journal articles on violence and other topics on masculinities. He is the author of Becoming Men: Black Masculinities in a South African Township.

Bandile Bertrand Leopeng is a professional boxer and counselling psychologist registered with the HPCSA. He is also an academic with theoretical areas of interest in culture and society, decolonization, gender, mental health issues, and race. He completed his postgraduate training at Wits and is seeking to continue further with a pioneering PhD research project. He believes in a radical upheaval of existing knowledge systems, questioning normative assumptions, and seeking new ways of interpreting the world.

Lekholokoe Paul Leshota holds a PhD and is Associate Professor of Pastoral Therapy and Biblical Studies in the Department of Theology and Religious Studies, at the National University of Lesotho. He is also a research fellow in the Department of Practical and Systematic Theology in the College of Human Sciences as well as a senior lecturer extraordinary at the Centre for Disability & Rehabilitation Studies, Department of Global Health at Stellenbosch University. He has published articles and chapters in books on a wide range of topics including Biblical interpretation, disability, HIV and AIDS, migration, gender and sexuality, transformative masculinities, ecology, and folklore stories within the postmodern and postcolonial contexts. His latest edited books are Breaking the Master's S.H.I.T. Holes: Doing Theology in the Context of Global Migration (Evangelische Verlagsanstalt, 2020) as well as Mother Earth, Mother Africa and Biblical Studies Interpretations in the Context of Climate Change (University of Bamberg Press, 2021).

Patricia Machawira is an African woman leader and trusted diplomat whose life's work is motivated by the belief that education and health are fundamental human rights and powerful pathways toward building a fairer society. She is a highly regarded education specialist with a proven history of successfully mobilizing resources and overseeing large-scale development programs. Her strong understanding of the unique contexts of Sub-Saharan Africa and her extensive experience working in both the education and health sectors have allowed her to contribute toward her passion to ensure that children and young people are educated, healthy, empowered, and have the capacity to reach their full potential and contribute to the development of their country and communities. She currently works as UNESCO's Regional Advisor on Education for Health and Wellbeing for Eastern and Southern Africa (ESA) Region.

Patricia holds a doctorate in Education Policy from the University of Pretoria, South Africa (2009), an MSc Education and Training Systems Design, University of Twente, Netherlands (1999), and a BSc Honors Nutrition, University of Zimbabwe (1996). To date, she has published, co-authored, or led the coordination of over 20 publications on various subject areas including education policy, curriculum design, HIV and AIDS, CSE and SRHR.

Tshenolo Jennifer Madigele teaches in the Department of Theology and Religious Studies at the University of Botswana and is an ordained minister of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Botswana. Her teaching areas include pastoral care and counselling and systematic theology. Her research interest includes human sexuality, pastoral care and counselling to the LGBTIQ (lesbians, gays, bisexuals, transgendered, intersexed and queer) community, pastoral care and counselling to the ageing community and both pastoral care and counselling.

Gavaza Maluleke serves as a lecturer in the Department of Political Studies at the University of Cape Town. Her research interests are in digital activism, transnational feminisms, decolonial theory, migration, gendered violence, masculinities, and media studies in Africa. Her current work focuses on digital activism and gendered violence in Post-Apartheid South Africa.

Godfrey Maringira is Associate Professor of Anthropology at Sol Plaatje University, Kimberley, Northern Cape, South Africa. He holds a National Research Foundation C2 rating. He is a senior Volkswagen Stiftung Foundation research fellow and is also a principal investigator of the International Development Research Center (IDRC) research on Gang violence in South Africa. His areas of research include armed violence in Africa with a specific focus on the military in postcolonial Africa. His 2017 African Affairs journal article “Politicisation and resistance in the Zimbabwe National Army” was awarded the best author price in 2018. In 2020 he was awarded the Benedict Vilakazi best author price, African Studies Journal (Routledge) for his article titled: “When Combatants Became Peaceful: Azania People Liberation Army Ex-combatants in Post-apartheid South Africa”. He is the author of Soldiers and the State in Zimbabwe, Routledge, 2019.

Jones Hamburu Mawerenga is Senior Lecturer in Systematic Theology and Christian Ethics at the University of Malawi. He is also a research fellow in the Department of Practical Theology and Mission Studies, Faculty of Theology and Religion, University of Pretoria. His research interests and publications include religion and sexuality, albinism, and theological education in Africa.

Fredrick Mbogo, PhD is a senior lecturer in the Department of Music and Performing Arts, at The Technical University of Kenya. He also practices theatre in Nairobi as a playwright and director and has staged many plays at The Kenya National Theatre. His latest play as a playwright How to Buy a House in Kitengela continues to draw popular interest and acclaim in Nairobi. Mbogo’s research in the areas of theatre, performance of identity, and popular culture has also been published in various academic journals and presented at various international conferences.

Kristen E. McLean is Assistant Professor of International Studies at the College of Charleston. Her research is concerned with issues related to gender, youth, violence, and health in post-conflict and humanitarian settings. Other interests include the social dynamics of infectious disease outbreaks (primarily in West Africa). McLean holds a BA and MPH from Emory University and a PhD in Anthropology from Yale University.

Sakhumzi Mfecane is an associate professor in the Department of Anthropology at the University of the Western Cape, South Africa, who has written widely on African masculinities, men's health, and medical anthropology. His research has appeared in a number of international, peer-reviewed journals including South African Review of Sociology, Social Dynamics, International Journal of Men's Health, Culture, Health and Sexuality, Anthropology Southern Africa, and African Journal of AIDS Research.

Obert Bernard Mlambo teaches Roman History in a Global Context at Rhodes University. He received his PhD from the University of Zimbabwe, and was a Humboldt Fellow at the University of Cologne's Institute of African Studies and Egyptology and a Visiting Scholar at the university's Global South Studies Center. His research and publications cover multi-disciplinary perspectives and relate the Classics to African cultures and contexts. His most recent publications include Land Expropriation in Ancient Rome and Contemporary Zimbabwe: Veterans, Masculinity and War (Bloomsbury) and chapters in Multidisciplinary Perspectives on Zimbabwe's Liberation Struggle (2022) and (u)Mzantsi Classics: Dialogues in Decolonisation from Southern Africa (2022).

Eileen Moyer is Professor of Anthropology of Ecology, Health and Climate Change at the Amsterdam Institute for Social Science (AISSR), University of Amsterdam, and is the chair of the Anthropology Department. Throughout her career, Moyer has focused on complex contemporary social issues, including HIV, gendered violence, environmental pollution, and climate change. Together with Lenore Manderson (University of Witwatersrand), she is principal investigator of the research project, Ecological Community Engagements: Imagining Sustainability and the Water-Energy-Food Nexus in Urban South African Environments (Eco-Imagining). Moyer is also an ERC Consolidator Grant laureate, having directed the Becoming Men: Performing Responsible Masculinities in Contemporary Urban Africa project (2015–2021), which researched changing norms and practices related to gender, sexuality, and public health in Kenya, South Africa, and Tanzania.

Roberts Kabeba Muriisa (Dr. Polit. Bergen) is Professor of Governance, Faculty of Interdisciplinary Studies at Mbarara University of Science and Technology (MUST). He is Head, Department of Planning and Governance, Faculty of Interdisciplinary Studies, MUST. His research interests and publications focus on public policy governance, natural resource governance, higher education governance, governance of global pandemics—HIV and COVID-19—and governance of food security systems.

Linda Musariri is an assistant professor at the University of Amsterdam within the Anthropology Department. Prior to this she was a junior fellow at the Amsterdam Institute for Global Health and Development in Amsterdam and a post-doctoral fellow at the African Centre for Migration and Society at the University of Witwatersrand in Johannesburg, South Africa. She completed her PhD in Anthropology at the Amsterdam Institute of Social Science Research (AISSR), University of Amsterdam. Her current research focuses on plastics, climate change action, toxicities, migration, gender, labor, and health with a specific focus on power dynamics in knowledge production.

Nelly Mwale is a senior lecturer in the Department of Religious Studies at the University of Zambia. Her research interests are religion in the public sphere, religion and education, religion, gender and development, religion and environment, church history and African indigenous religions.

Amon Ashaba Mwiine is Lecturer in the School of Women and Gender Studies, Makerere University Kampala. Mwiine is also a research fellow, holding a three-year Mellon fellowship on Archiving, Memory and Method in the College of Humanities and Social Sciences, Makerere University (2022–2024). His research interests are in critical studies of men and masculinity; ethnographic and narrative forms of qualitative research; gender and politics.

Gibson Ncube lectures in the Department of Modern Foreign Languages at Stellenbosch University. His broad research interests are in comparative literature, gender/queer studies, and cultural studies. He has published widely in these areas.

Sarah Ngoh is the Assistant Director of First- and Second-Year English at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, KS. She is also a 2022–2024 Mellon DEI Teaching Scholar. Ngoh's research interests include masculinities studies, African literature, disability studies, hip-hop pedagogy, composition pedagogy, and equitable and inclusive teaching practices.

Dunlop O. Ochieng is Senior Lecturer and Dean, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences at The Open University of Tanzania. He received his PhD for his research on the indirect influence of English on Kiswahili in Tanzania from TU Chemnitz in Germany. He has since been teaching and researching language and gender, language attitudes and language use in Tanzania, developments in contemporary literature and language in social media. He is also interested in the use of technology to improve academic writing among university students and academics. Dunlop O. Ochieng also writes novels, reviews, and edits academic documents.

Ayokunmi Ojebode is a lecturer at SOAS University of London and a Fellow at the Institute for Name-Studies (INS), School of English, University of Nottingham, England. His areas of expertise are African literature, Cultural Studies, Health Humanities, and Literary Onomastics. He has published widely in these areas.

Joseph Basil Okong'o serves as Senior Lecturer in Oral Literature and Performance Studies at Moi University, Eldoret, Kenya. He has carried out cultural anthropology-related research on the intersecting areas of Luo folk music, football, and society. He has published widely on these and other themes.

Kasarachi Collins Okpeh is a lecturer in the Department of Theatre and Film Studies, University of Nigeria, Nsukka. His research and publication interests include film and theatre criticism and cultural studies.

Oguejiofor V. Omeje is a lecturer in the Humanities Unit, School of General Studies and in the Department of Theatre and Film Studies, both at the University of Nigeria, Nsukka. His research and publication interest include feminism, indigenous technology, eco-literacy, cultural studies and traditional African drama and theatre.

Maurice Oduor Omollo is a lecturer at Maasai Mara University in Kenya. He is a self-driven Human Geographer and his publications and research areas are strongly inclined towards informal urban settlements on economic endeavours that transform lives, on environmental conditions that must be mitigated to improve the circumstances of the poor urban dwellers, and lately on interdisciplinary teams in providing greater understanding of human interactions within urban areas.

Kennedy Owino (PhD) is a senior lecturer and the Academic Dean at the Seth Mokitimi Methodist Seminary (SMMS). He is also a Research Fellow at the College of Human Sciences, Research Institute for Theology and Religion at the University of South Africa (UNISA). He is a systematic theologian whose current research interests and scholarship concentrates on the interface of Religion, Christian Theology, African Christianities, and Gender Studies, with specific focus on Critical studies on Men and Masculinity.

Elizabeth M. Perego is Assistant Professor of History at Appalachian State University, part of the University of North Carolina. Her research examines the intersection of culture, politics, and gender in the modern Maghribi past. Her work has appeared in the Journal of North African Studies and the Journal of Middle East Studies. Her first book Humor and Power in Algeria, 1920 to 2021 was published by Indiana University Press in 2023.

Matinngoe Akim Phamotse is the deputy commissioner of Lesotho Correctional Service, appointed as Chief of Staff. He holds a Diploma in Social Youth Work, Bachelor of Education [Adult Education], Advanced Diploma in Public Administration, and a Degree of Masters in Management Studies specializing in Public Administration from Durban University of Technology. He taught Adult Education at the Institute of Extra-Mural Studies of the National University of Lesotho and is a nonviolence and gender activists with intense interest on transformative masculinities. His academic interests revolve around adult and non-formal education, gender transformative approach to national development; alternatives to violence initiatives, youth and community work, peace-building and conflict transformation. He is currently a doctoral student at the International Centre of Nonviolence (ICON) at the Durban University of Technology.

Tlali Abel Phohlo is a lecturer in the Department of Theology and Religious Studies at the National University of Lesotho. His research interests and publications include gender issues, masculinities, and religion and politics.

Kopano Ratele is Professor of Psychology at Stellenbosch University, South Africa, and a nationally and internationally acclaimed scholar in masculinity studies and decolonial Africa(n)-centring thought. His published works include From Boys to Men: Social Constructions of Masculinity in Contemporary Society (2008), There was this Goat: Investigating the Truth Commission Testimony of Notrose Nobomvu Konile (2009), Liberating Masculinities (2016), Engaging Youth in Activism, Research and Pedagogical Praxis: Transnational and Intersectional Perspectives on Gender, Sex, and Race (2018), The World Looks like this from Here: Thoughts on African Psychology (2019), and Why Men Hurt Women and Other Reflections on Love, Violence and Masculinity (2022).

Jolly Rubagiza is a senior lecturer and researcher at the Centre for Gender Studies, College of Arts and Social Sciences, University of Rwanda (UR). Her research interests and publications are in the fields of gender, education and development, peace building and social cohesion in education, and gender, ICT & STEM education. Jolly is also an active member of a number of women's organizations in Rwanda.

Asasira Simon Rwabyoma is a senior researcher and policy specialist in Endogenous Knowledge Development at the Organisation of Southern Cooperation (OEC). He was a 2021 Next Generation Social Sciences in Africa: Doctoral Dissertation Research Fellow of the Social Science Research Council, New York, at The Open University of Tanzania. He previously taught at Makerere University and University of Rwanda, among others. His research and publications focus on education and development, endogenous knowledge, endogenous development, men and masculinities, gender and development.

Karem Said is a lecturer in the Department of Comparative Cultural Studies at the University of Houston in Houston, TX. Her research explores the gendered intersection of digital infrastructure and urban change and calls for the discovery of what counts as “digital infrastructure” in a given place. Her post-revolutionary study of social media along the periphery of Tunis demonstrates that relationships between residents constitute digital infrastructure, even as these same relationships bolster neighbourhood growth.

Nomatter Sande is a Practical Theologian. He is a research fellow at the Research Institute for Theology and Religion (RITR) in the College of Human Sciences, University of South Africa (UNISA). Research interest includes disability studies, missions, ecology, and gender.

Remmy Shawa, a distinguished Public Health Specialist, brings a wealth of experience to his role as Senior Project Officer and Head of Office at UNESCO in the East and Southern Africa region. With over 14 years in development work, including within the UN system, he has led impactful regional initiatives, such as the Men and HIV work at UNAIDS headquarters, the MenEngage Africa Training Initiative (MATI), and the Men and Family Planning Initiative at Sonke Gender Justice. Beyond his development work, Shawa has been actively involved in academia as a teaching assistant at the University of Cape Town School of Public Health and Family Medicine. In 2014, he founded PsycHealth Zambia, a mental health outfit in Zambia. With a PhD in Public Health from the University of Cape Town, Shawa is dedicated to addressing public health challenges and promoting human rights and gender equality. He has written extensively on the nexus between public health and human rights, notably his work on the right to enjoy the benefits of scientific progress within the public health sphere.

Jasmine Shio is a Tanzanian researcher currently working as the head of research and learning at BBC Media Action Tanzania. Her current research activities inform the content that aims at bringing behavioral change through media. In 2021 she completed her PhD in Anthropology at the University of Amsterdam where her research focused on gender and sexuality. In 2021 she joined the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine where she pursued a 13-months research fellowship in the areas of gender, power relations and IPV in Tanzania. Her research interests and publications include masculinities, gender, health, and governance.

Fortune Sibanda is Professor of Religious Studies, Department of Theology and Religious Studies, University of Eswatini and the Department of Philosophy and Religious Studies, Great Zimbabwe University. Sibanda is also research fellow in the Research Institute for Theology and Religion, UNISA, South Africa. His research interests include religion and peace-building, law, health, climate change, gender, human rights, marginality, among others. Sibanda is an ACLARS Board member and also sits on the ACLARS Publication Committee and is a Southern African Region Representative.

Donald Skinner is a specialist researcher in the Division of Public Health at Stellenbosch University, South Africa. His primary interests are qualitative and participatory research methods, adherence, improving conditions for patients, intervention development and working with key populations.

Asangba Reginald Taluah is a senior lecturer at the Akenten Appiah-Menka University of Skills Training and Entrepreneurial Development, the erstwhile Kumasi and Ashanti Mampong Campuses of the University of Education, Winneba. He holds a PhD in Literary Linguistics (African Studies), and the courses he teaches and areas of research include anthropological linguistics, English education, literary studies, cognitive linguistics, comparative literature, oral literature, and African studies in general. He has about 12 years of teaching and research experience in the tertiary education in the above-mentioned university where he serves in the Faculty of Education and General Studies and the Department of Interdisciplinary Studies, respectively.

Ronald Tshelametse is a senior lecturer and head of the Department of Mathematics at the University of Botswana. He specializes in numerical analysis, computing, logic and algorithm designs. He applies his logic expertise across fields such as Social Science, Humanities, and Natural Sciences. He has published on topics including religion and income inequality in Botswana; and pastoral care to the grieving elderly.

Scolasticah Nabututu Wabende is a PhD candidate in Linguistics at Moi University and her research interests are in the field of ethnolinguistics.

Solomon Matete Waliaula is Associate Professor of Literary and Cultural Studies at Maasai Mara University in Kenya. He is a Fritz Thyssen Foundation Senior Research Fellow at the Department of Anthropology and African Studies at Johannes Gutenberg University of Mainz, Germany. He holds a PhD in Literature from Moi University, Kenya and is a DAAD and Alexander Von Humboldt alumnus. He is a well-published academic researcher whose interests are in popular culture, cultural studies, and media ethnography.

LIST OF FIGURES

Fig. 27.1	The demographic characteristics of the sample in Assuit	531
Fig. 27.2	The demographic characteristics of the sample in Sohag	532
Fig. 27.3	Men's acknowledgement of the women's right to inherit. Do you acknowledge the legal right of women to inherit? Men's Perspective %?	534
Fig. 27.4	Women's acknowledgment of their right to inherit in Assuit. Do you acknowledge women's right to inherit?	537
Fig. 27.5	Women's acknowledgement of their right to inherit in Sohag. Do you acknowledge women's right to inherit?	538
Fig. 27.6	Women's acknowledgment of their right to inherit in Assuit. Do you acknowledge women's right to inherit?	539
Fig. 27.7	Women's acknowledgment of their right to inherit in Sohag. Do you acknowledge women's right to inherit?	539
Fig. 27.8	Women's claim of their right to inherit in Assuit. Did you or will you claim your right of inheritance?	540
Fig. 27.9	Women's claim of their right to inherit in Sohag. Did you or will you claim your right of inheritance?	541
Fig. 36.1	Traditional smock colour patterns	714
Fig. 36.2	Modern smock colour patterns. (Source: EBAN African collections)	715
Fig. 36.3	Chiefs and some government representatives of the Upper East Region of northern Ghana. (Source: apexnewsgh.com)	717
Fig. 36.4	A northern chief and both male and female elders in smock attire. (Source: northernghanaians.blogspot.com)	718
Fig. 36.5	The Chief of Savulugu, then Kampakuya Naa (Yoo Naa Abdulai Yakubu Andani) and some elders of Dagbon in state	719
Fig. 36.6	A man in a Kparigu	720

Fig. 36.7	Two men in Yansichi and Kpakuto	721
Fig. 36.8	A man dressed in white Yansichi and Kurugu and hat to match	722
Fig. 36.9	A chief in a white hat	723
Fig. 36.10	A chief in a red hat	724
Fig. 36.11	A hat worn upright	724
Fig. 36.12	A hat worn facing to the front	725
Fig. 36.13	A hat worn pointing to the left	725
Fig. 36.14	A hat worn pointing to the right	726
Fig. 36.15	A hat worn pointing backwards	726
Fig. 36.16	A common hat mostly worn by Moslem men	727
Fig. 36.17	Some elders with towel head gears and walking sticks in a procession	728
Fig. 36.18	A representation of elders in their respective smocks and towels on their shoulders	729
Fig. 36.19	Mock war performers amongst the Bulsas of north eastern Ghana. (Source: Africani Sankofa—WordPress.com)	730
Fig. 36.20	Mock war performers amongst the Kasena of north eastern Ghana	731
Fig. 36.21	A man with amulets worn on the arms	732
Fig. 36.22	A man with amulets stitched on a smock	733
Fig. 42.1	Estimates of TB incidence (black outline) and case notifications by age and sex (red = female) for Africa, 2018. (Source: WHO 2019)	828
Fig. 43.1	Social Ecological Model. (Source: Adapted from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), The Social Ecological Model: A Framework for Prevention. http://www.cdc.gov/violenceprevention/overview/social-ecologicalmodel.html)	851
Fig. 43.2	Excerpt from the ITGSE	857
Fig. 44.1	The slum villages of Mathare Valley in Nairobi, Kenya. (Source: Extracted and modified from Data Exchange Platform for the Horn of Africa (DEPHA) 2008)	869