

EXECUTIVE POLITICS AND GOVERNANCE

palgrave▶pivot

Mapping Behavioral
Public Policy
Citizens' Preferences
and Trust

Paolo Belardinelli

palgrave
macmillan

Executive Politics and Governance

Series Editors

Martin Lodge, London School of Economics and Political Science,
London, UK

Kai Wegrich, Hertie School of Governance, Berlin, Germany

The Executive Politics and Governance series focuses on central government, its organisation and its instruments. It is particularly concerned with how the changing conditions of contemporary governing affect perennial questions in political science and public administration. Executive Politics and Governance is therefore centrally interested in questions such as how politics interacts with bureaucracies, how issues rise and fall on political agendas, and how public organisations and services are designed and operated. This book series encourages a closer engagement with the role of politics in shaping executive structures, and how administration shapes politics and policy-making. In addition, this series also wishes to engage with the scholarship that focuses on the organisational aspects of politics, such as government formation and legislative institutions. The series welcomes high quality research-led monographs with comparative appeal. Edited volumes that provide in-depth analysis and critical insights into the field of Executive Politics and Governance are also encouraged.

Editorial Board

Philippe Bezes, CNRS-CERSA, Paris, France

Jennifer N. Brass, Indiana University Bloomington, USA

Sharon Gilad, Hebrew University Jerusalem, Israel

Will Jennings, University of Southampton, UK

David E. Lewis, Vanderbilt University, USA

Jan-Hinrik Meyer-Sahling, University of Nottingham, UK

Salvador Parrado, UNED, Madrid, Spain

Nick Sitter, Central European University, Hungary

Kutsal Yesilkagit, University of Utrecht, the Netherlands

Paolo Belardinelli

Mapping Behavioral Public Policy

Citizens' Preferences and Trust

palgrave
macmillan

Paolo Belardinelli
O'Neill School of Public
and Environmental Affairs
Indiana University
Bloomington, IN, USA

ISSN 2946-367X ISSN 2946-3688 (electronic)
Executive Politics and Governance
ISBN 978-3-031-58530-2 ISBN 978-3-031-58531-9 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-031-58531-9>

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s), under exclusive license to Springer
Nature Switzerland AG 2024

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, expressed or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover illustration: © John Rawsterne/patternhead.com

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Switzerland AG
The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

If disposing of this product, please recycle the paper.

All of us learn to write in the second grade. Most of us go on to greater things

—Bob Knight

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I want to firstly thank Stewart Beale at Palgrave Macmillan. He initially nudged me toward the possibility of starting this project and then gave the opportunity to make it a reality. I am very grateful to him. I am also thankful to the anonymous reviewers who patiently provided suggestions during the proposal stage of this project and later, when the first draft was ready.

I want to thank Stani Huepfl, who supported me during his undergraduate studies at the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) in collecting the data necessary to develop the systematic review included in the third chapter of the Pivot.

I am indebted to Nicola Bellé, who directed me toward this field of study at the beginning of my research path. At a time when the use of behavioral sciences to address citizens' irrationalities was becoming trendy, we began exploring irrational behavior within government. Since then, we have worked extensively on decision-making in public administration and continue to do so. In this ongoing work, Paola Cantarelli is part of the team and I am also grateful to her.

A different version of the fourth chapter has circulated across a few venues in the past as a working paper. I am grateful for the comments received during presentations at the London Public Policy Group, the IBEI Institute in Barcelona, and Indiana University in Bloomington. I am also very grateful to Tony Bertelli, Peter John, Martin Lodge, and Ed Page, who took the time to read the old version of the chapter and to provide me with thoughtful feedback. My gratitude to Martin Lodge extends to his making me feel welcome at LSE and inspiring reflection on my own work while I was there. Martin and Kai Wegrich have kindly included this Pivot in their series on Executive Politics and Governance, for which I am very thankful.

Finally, I am thankful to my students at LSE and Indiana University, whose diverse opinions on the subject have been often thought-provoking.

With this kind of support, it might seem very difficult to produce a poor result. However, it is still possible that I made mistakes and was unable to utilize all these inputs effectively.

CONTENTS

1	Introduction	1
	Structure of the Pivot	3
	Behavioral Insights and Public Policy	3
	Behavioral Public Policy and the Monopoly of Nudging	3
	The Right Behavioral Technique for the Right Context	3
	Legitimacy of Behavioral Public Policy and Trust in Public Institutions	4
	Implications for Research and Practice	4
	References	4
2	Behavioral Insights and Public Policy	7
	Foundations	8
	Nudging	14
	Behavioral Public Policy	16
	Randomized Controlled Trials as the Gold Standard	17
	References	19
3	Behavioral Public Policy and the Monopoly of Nudging	25
	A Common Misunderstanding	26
	Systematic Review of Conceptualizations	28
	Definitions	31

The Relationship Between Nudging and Behavioral Public Policy	35
Alternative Behavioral Public Policy Techniques	37
Summing Up	41
References	41
4 The Right Behavioral Technique for the Right Context	47
The Importance of Cultural and Political Context	48
Evidence-Based Policy	50
Alternative Interpretations of Behavioral Evidence	52
Alternative Uses of Behavioral Evidence, in Context	55
Summing Up	60
References	62
5 Legitimacy of Behavioral Public Policy and Trust in Public Institutions	69
The Role of Trust	70
All You Need Is Performance?	71
Unintended Consequences	73
Legitimacy and Trust	75
Summing Up	81
References	82
6 Implications for Research and Practice	87
So What?	88
Implications for Research	88
Implications for Practice	92
References	94
Index	97