Notes on Contributors

Suzanne Becken is a Professor of Sustainable Tourism at Griffith University, Australia, and an Adjunct Professor at Lincoln University, New Zealand. Susanne is on the editorial boards of Annals of Tourism Research, Journal of Travel Research, Journal of Sustainable Tourism, Journal of Policy Research in Tourism, Leisure and Events, and Tourism Review. She is actively involved in debates on climate change, resilience, risk management, and tourism.

Mads Bødker works as an associate professor at the Copenhagen Business School, Department of IT Management. His primary interests lie in the fields of human–computer interaction (HCI) and interaction design. Focusing on the domain of tourism, his current research challenges dominant assumptions within IT, HCI, and technical work previously applied to tourism by focusing on experiential, affective, and sensory perspectives. Inspired by human geography and phenomenology, his work emphasizes the understanding of tourist places as performances, and aims to inspire and derive implications for design of mobile IT services from place-oriented research methods.

Bill Bramwell is Professor of International Tourism Studies at Sheffield Hallam University, UK. He is coeditor of the Journal of Sustainable Tourism, and he has edited books on tourism's relationships with partnerships, sustainability in Europe, rural development, governance and policy-making, and coastal areas in Southern Europe. His research interests include tourism policy and planning, tourism and environmental politics, governance in tourism, tourism development and society in China, and political economy and tourism development.

T.C. Chang is associate professor at the Department of Geography of the National University of Singapore where he is also Vice-Dean (External Relations and Student Life) of the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. He is also the associate editor of the Singapore Journal of Tropical Geography and is on the editorial board of Current Issues in Tourism. His research and publications focus mainly on urbanization and heritage conservation, tourism, and arts and culture (focusing mainly on Asia).

Prem Chhetri is Professor of Geologistics in the College of Business at RMIT University in Melbourne, Australia. His recent research has centered on urban and spatial modeling, tourism cluster and governance, emergency logistics and policy response, and application of GIS and GPS technologies in survey analytics, tourism potential modeling, and transport planning. He is the Deputy Head of School for industry engagement.

Joanne Connell is Senior Lecturer in Tourism Management, University of Exeter Business School, UK. She is coauthor of Tourism: A Modern Synthesis and edited the Routledge Handbook of Events (both with Stephen Page).

Mike Crang is Professor of Geography at Durham University. He was the founding editor of Tourist Studies, coedited The Mediterranean in the Age of Mass Tourism with (Pau Obdrador and Penny Travlou) and has written on film tourism in Greece and heritage tourism.

Keith G. Debbage is Professor of Geography at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. He received his PhD in geography from the University of Georgia in 1988. His principal research interests include the economic geography of tourism, air transportation, and urban development. Dr Debbage has published in many leading academic journals including the Annals of Tourism

Research and Tourism Management and he has been the recipient of dozens of research grants focused on urban development.

Larry Dwyer is President of the International Academy for the Study of Tourism and president of the International Association for Tourism Economics. His research interests include economics of tourism, tourism management, and tourism planning.

Eke Eijgelaar has been a researcher at the NHTV Centre for Sustainable Tourism and Transport (www.cstt.nl) since 2008. His main research interests concern the environmental impacts of tourism, particularly the monitoring and mitigation of its carbon footprint. This includes related topics like carbon management, carbon offsetting, and low-carbon tourism such as cycle tourism. Eke has published on these topics and also lectures on tourism–environment relations at NHTV.

David A. Fennell teaches and researches in the Department of Tourism and Environment, Brock University, Canada. He has written widely on ecotourism, tourism ethics, and moral issues tied to the use of animals in tourism. He is editor in chief of the Journal of Ecotourism.

Donald Getz received his PhD in social sciences from the University of Edinburgh (1981) and has subsequently held full-time appointments at the University of Waterloo and University of Calgary, followed by a 50% position at the University of Queensland. He is author of a number of books on events including two editions of Festival Management and Event Tourism, two editions of Event Studies, and most recently (2013) Event Tourism.

Chris Gibson is Professor of Human Geography at the University of Wollongong and Director of UOW's Global Challenges Research Program. His recent books include Music Festivals and Regional Development in Australia (cowritten with John Connell) and Creativity in Peripheral Places: Redefining the Creative Industries.

C. Michael Hall is a Professor in the Department of Management, Marketing and Entrepreneurship, University of Canterbury, New Zealand; Docent, University of Oulu, Finland; and a Visiting Professor at Linneaus University, Sweden and the University of Eastern Finland. He is coeditor of Current Issues of Tourism, an associate editor for Tourism Geographies, and book review editor for Journal of Sustainable Tourism and has published widely in tourism, environmental history, and gastronomy.

Lauren A. Hall-Lew is Lecturer in Sociolinguistics in the Department of Linguistics and English Language at the University of Edinburgh, where she teaches courses in sociolinguistics and empirical methods. Her interests and writings focus on the role of social factors (aspects of community histories and individual identities) in models of phonetic variation and change in varieties of English.

Amran Hamzah is a Professor in Tourism Planning and the Director of the Centre for Innovative Planning and Development (CiPD) at Universiti Teknologi Malaysia, Skudai, Malaysia. His area of specialization is the interface between community-based tourism (CBT) and ecotourism. Amran has been researching CBT since 1998 and has worked as a tourism consultant in the planning and developing CBT standards and in related projects in the Southeast Asia region.

Kevin Hannam is Professor of Tourism Mobilities at Leeds Metropolitan University, UK, and Visiting Senior Research Fellow at the University of Johannesburg, South Africa. With John Urry and Mimi Sheller he is a founding coeditor of the journal Mobilities. He is the coauthor of the recent books Understanding Tourism and Tourism and India. He is
