BRIEF CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>List of Entries</td>
<td>vii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>List of Illustrations</td>
<td>xiii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Editors and Contributors</td>
<td>xvii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preface and Acknowledgments</td>
<td>xix</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maps</td>
<td>xxiv</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eastern Orthodox Christianity A–Z</td>
<td>1–646</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix: Foundational Documents of Orthodox Theology</td>
<td>647</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Index</td>
<td>772</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
LIST OF ENTRIES

Afanasiev, Nicholas (1893–1966)
see Contemporary Orthodox Theology
Africa, Orthodoxy in Akathistos
Albania, Orthodox Church of Alexandria, Patriarchate of Ambo
Amnos
Anagnostes (Reader)
Analogion
Anaphora
Anastasimatarion
Angels
Anglicanism, Orthodoxy and Anointing of the Sick
Antidoron
Antimission
Antioch, Patriarchate of Apocalyptic see Eschatology
Apodeipnon
Apodosis
Apology
Apolytikion
Apophaticism
Aposticha
Apostolic Succession
Archdeacon
Architecture, Orthodox Church
Arianism
Armenian Christianity
Artoklasia
Artophorion
Asceticism
Assyrian Apostolic Church of the East
Asterisk
Australasia, Orthodox Church in
Autocephaly see United States of America, Orthodoxy in the Automelon see Idiomelon
Baptism
Barlaam of Calabria (ca. 1290–1348)
Behr-Sigel, Elisabeth (1907–2005) see Contemporary Orthodox Theology
Belarus see Lithuania, Orthodoxy in; Ukraine, Orthodoxy in the Berdiaev, Nikolai A. (1874–1948)
Bible
Bioethics, Orthodoxy and Blessing Rituals
Bogomils
Bulgakov, Sergius (Sergei) (1871–1944)
Bulgaria, Patriarchal Orthodox Church of Caerularios, Michael (d. 1059)
Calendar
Canon (Liturgical)
Canon Law
Canonization
Cappadocian Fathers
Cassia the Poet see Women in Orthodoxy
Catechumens
Charity
Chastity
Cheesefare (Sunday of) Cherubikon
China, Autonomous Orthodox Church of Chorepiscopos
Chrismation

Christ
Church (Orthodox Ecclesiology)
Communion of Saints
Confession
Constantinople, Patriarchate of Contemporary Orthodox Theology
Coptic Orthodoxy
Council of Chalcedon (451)
Council of Constantinople I (381)
Council of Constantinople II (553)
Council of Constantinople III (680–681)
Council of Ephesus (431)
Council of Nicea I (325)
Council of Nicea II (787)
Cross
Cyprus, Autocephalous Orthodox Church of Cyril Lukaris, Patriarch of Constantinople (1572–1638)
Czech Lands and Slovakia,
Orthodox Church of Deacon
Deaconess
Death (and Funeral)
Deification
Deisis
Desert Fathers and Mothers
Diakonikon
Divine Liturgy, Orthodox
Dormition
Dostoevsky, Fyodor Mikhailovich
(1821–1881)
Doxastikon
Eastern Catholic Churches
Ecology
Ecumenical Councils
Ecumenism, Orthodoxy and Education
Eileatarion
Eileton
Ekphonosis
Elder (Starets)
Eleousa (Umilenie)
Environmental Ethics see Ecology
Eoithina
Ephymnion see Kontakion
Epiclesis
Episcopacy
Epitrachelion
Eschatology
Estonia, Orthodox Church in Ethics
Eucharist
Euchologion
Evangelism
Evlogitaria
Exaposteilarion
Exarch
Excommunication
Exorcism
Fasting
Fatherhood of God
Feasts
Filioque
Finland, Autonomous Orthodox Church of
Florence, Council of (1438–1439)
Florensky, Pavel Alexandrovich
(1882–1937)
Florovsky, Georges V. (1893–1979)
Fools, Holy
Georgia, Patriarchal Orthodox Church of Glykophilousa
Gnosticism
Gospel
Grace
Great Week
Greece, Orthodox Church of
Gregory of Cyprus see Lyons, Council of (1274)
Hades
Hagiography
Healing
Heirmologion
Heresy
Hesychasm
Hexapsalmoi
Hieratikon
Hodegitria
Holy Spirit
Holy Trinity
Horologion
Humanity
Hymnography
Hypakoe
Iasi (Jassy), Synod of (1642)
Iconoclasm
Iconography, Styles of Iconostasis
Icons
Idiomelon
Imiaslavie
Incarnation (of the Logos)
Incense
Islam, Orthodoxy and Ison see Music (Sacred)
Japan, Autonomous Orthodox Church of
Jeremias II, Patriarch (1572–1595)
Jerusalem, Patriarchate of Jesus Prayer
John Bekkos see Lyons, Council of (1274)
Judaism, Orthodoxy and Judgment
Kalymauchion
Katavasia
Kathisma
Kathismata see Idiomelon;
Kathisma
Kazakhstan, Orthodoxy in
Khomiakov, Aleksey S. (1804–1860)
Klobuk see Kalymauchion
Kollyva
Kollyvadic Fathers
Kontakion
Koukoulion see Kalymauchion;
Kontakion
Lamb see Lance; Proskomedie
(Prothesis)
Lampadarios see Music (Sacred)
Lance
Latvia, Orthodoxy in Lithuania, Orthodoxy in Liturgical Books
Logos Theology
Lossky, Vladimir (1903–1958)
Love
Lyons, Council of (1274)
Malankara Orthodox Syrian
Church
Mandorla
Maronites
Marriage
Maximus the Greek (1470–1555)
Meatfare see Cheesefare (Sunday of)
Megalomartyr Saints
Melismas see Music (Sacred)
Men, Alexander (1935–1990)
Menaion
Mesonyktikon
Metanie (Metanoia)
Meteora
Meyendorff, John (1926–1992)
see Contemporary Orthodox
Theology
Military Saints
Miracles
Mission see Evangelism
Moghila, Peter (1596–1646)
Moldova, Orthodoxy in Monasticism
Monophysitism (including Miaphysitism)
Monothelitism
Mother Maria Skobtsova
(1891–1945) see Contemporary Orthodox Theology
Mount Athos
Music (Sacred)
Myrobletes Saints
Mystery (Sacrament)
Name (Name Day)
Nativity of the Lord
List of Entries

Nativity of the Theotokos
Nestorianism
Neumes see Music (Sacred)
New Martyrs
Newly Revealed Saints
Nikephoros Blemmydes (1197–1272)
   see Lyons, Council of (1274)
Niptic Books (Paterika)
Nissiotis, Nikos (1925–1986)
   see Contemporary Orthodox Theology; Ecumenism
Non-Possessors (Nil Sorskii)
Ode
Oktoechos
Old Believers
Old Testament
Optina
Ordination
Oriental Orthodox
Original Sin
Orthros (Matins)
Ottoman Yoke
Panagia
Panikhida see Death (and Funeral); Kollyva
Pannychis see Kontakion
Pantocrator Icon
Papacy
Paradise
Paraklesis
Paraklitike
Parousia
Pascha see Calendar; Feasts
Passion Bearers
Paterikon see Niptic Books (Paterika)
Patristics
Pentarchy
Pentecost, Feast of Pentekostarion
Penthos see Repentance
Perichoresis
Phelonion
Philokalia
Philosophy
Photogogika see Exapostelarion
Pilgrim, Way of the Platytera
Pneumatology see Holy Spirit
Pokrov see Protecting Veil
Poland, Orthodox Church of
Pontike, Evagrios (ca. 345–399)
Possessors (Joseph of Volotsk)
Prayer
Prayer of the Heart see Jesus
   Prayer; St. Isaac the Syrian (7th c.);
   St. Paisy Velichovsky (1722–1794)
Priesthood
Promion see Kontakion
Prokeimenon
Proskomiede (Prothesis)
Prosoomoia see Idiomelon
Prophora see Lance;
   Proskomiede (Prothesis)
Protecting Veil
Prothesis see Proskomiede
Protodeacon
Protopsaltes see Music (Sacred)
Psaltes (Cantor)
Psilanthropism
Psychosabbaton
Quinisext Council (Council in Trullo) (692)
Relics
Repentance
Resurrection
Rhipidion (Fan)
Romania, Patriarchal Orthodox Church of Rome, Ancient Patriarchate of Royal Doors
Russia, Patriarchal Orthodox Church of
St. Alexis Toth see United States of America, Orthodoxy in the St. Andrei Rublev (ca. 1360–1430)
St. Antony of Egypt (the Great)
   (ca. 251–356)
St. Athanasius of Alexandria
   (ca. 293–373)
St. Augustine of Hippo
(354–430)
St. Basil of Caesarea
(Basil the Great) (330–379)
St. Constantine the Emperor
(ca. 271–337)
St. Cyril of Alexandria
(ca. 378–444)
St. Dionysius the Areopagite
St. Dorotheos of Gaza (6th c.)
St. Elizaveta Feodorovna
(1864–1918)
St. Ephrem the Syrian
(ca. 306–373/379)
St. Feofan see Theophan the Greek (ca. 1340–1410)
St. Filaret (Philaret) Drozdov
(1782–1867)
St. Gregory the Great, Pope
(ca. 540–604)
St. Gregory of Nazianzus
(Gregory the Theologian)
(329–390)
St. Gregory Palamas (1296–1359)
St. Herman of Alaska see Finland,
Autonomous Orthodox Church of;
United States of America,
Orthodoxy in the
St. Ignatius Brianchaninov
(1807–1867)
St. Innocent of Alaska see
United States of America,
Orthodoxy in the
St. Isaac the Syrian (7th c.)
St. John Cassian
(ca. 360–ca. 435)
St. John Chrysostom (349–407)
St. John of Damascus
(ca. 675–ca. 750)
St. John Climakos
(ca. 579–ca. 659)
St. Macarius (4th c.)
St. Mark of Ephesus (1392–1445)
St. Maximos the Confessor
(580–662)
St. Nicholas Cabasilas
(ca. 1322–ca. 1391)
St. Nicholas the Wonderworker
St. Nikodemos the Hagiorite
(1749–1809)
St. Paisy Velichkovsky (1722–1794)
St. Photios the Great
(ca. 810–ca. 893)
St. Romanos the Melodist (6th c.)
St. Seraphim of Sarov
(1759–1833)
St. Sergius of Radonezh
(1314–1392)
St. Silouan of Athos (1866–1938)
St. Symeon the New Theologian
(949–1022)
St. Theodore the Studite
(759–826)
St. Theophan (Govorov)
the Recluse (1815–1894)
St. Tikhon (Belavin) (1865–1925)
St. Tikhon of Zadonsk
(1724–1783)
Sts. Barsanuphious and John (6th c.)
Sts. Constantine (Cyril)
(ca. 826–869) and Methodios
(815–885)
Schmemann, Alexander
(1921–1983) see Contemporary Orthodoxy Theology
Scholarios, George (Gennadios)
(ca. 1403–1472)
Semandron
Serbia, Patriarchal Orthodox Church of Sexual Ethics
Sin see Original Sin; Soteriology
Sinai, Autocephalous Church of Skoupho see Kalymauchion
Solovyov, Vladimir (1853–1900)
Sophiology
Sophrony, Archimandrite
(1896–1993)
Soteriology
Stâniloae, Dumitru (1903–1993)
Starets see Elder (Starets)
Stavrophore
Stethatos, Niketas
  (ca. 1005–1085)
Sticharion
Sticheron
Styliate Saints
Subdeacon see Ordination
Syrian Orthodox Churches
Teretismata see Music (Sacred)
Theophan the Greek
  (ca. 1340–1410)
Theophany, Feast of Theophylact of Ohrid
  (ca. 1050–1108)
Theotokion
Theotokos, the Blessed Virgin
Tradition
Triodion
Troparion
Tropes see Music (Sacred)
Ukraine, Orthodoxy in the Uniate see Eastern Catholic Churches
United States of America,
  Orthodoxy in the Unmercenary Saints
Vespers (Hesperinos)
Vestments
Virgins
War
Wealth
Western Europe, Orthodoxy in Widows
Women in Orthodoxy
World Religions, Orthodoxy and Yannaras, Christos (b. 1935)
  see Contemporary Orthodox
  Theology
ILLUSTRATIONS

Plate 1  Ethiopian Orthodox clergy celebrating at the rock-carved church of St. George Lalibela
Plate 2  Pilgrims gathered around the Ethiopian Orthodox Church of Holy Emmanuel
Plate 3  Orthodox clergy at celebrations for the Feast of the Ark of the Covenant (Timkat)
Plate 4  St. Matthew the Evangelist
Plate 5  Holy Trinity Church, Sergiev Posad
Plate 6  Interior of St. Catherine’s Monastery, 19th-century print, the Basilica of the Transfiguration
Plate 7  An Ethiopian hermit cave-dweller and his two deacon assistants
Plate 8  Baptism of a baby
Plate 9  Russian priest monk blessing Paschal kulich cake
Plate 10 Contemporary icon of Christ Philanthropos
Plate 11 The Monastery of the Holy Trinity, Sergiev Posad
Plate 12 The Orthodox confession service
Plate 13 Coptic fresco of Christ in glory from the Monastery of St. Antony by the Red Sea
Plate 14 Orthodox pilgrim in Jerusalem venerating the icon of the cross held by a monk
Plate 15 Deacon wearing vestments of his order with the diagonally placed stole and carrying the bishop’s blessing candle (Dikeri)
Plate 16 Russian Orthodox funeral
Plate 17 Monastery of St. Antony in Egypt
Plate 18 Father Pavlos, the spiritual Elder (Starets) of the Sinai monastic community
Plate 19 Icon of the Virgin Mary, Mother of God of Tenderness (Eleousa)
Plate 20 Ukrainian bishop giving the blessing at the divine liturgy with the Dikeri and Trikeri candlesticks, standing in front of the iconostasis
Plate 21 Priest blessing Paschal foods
Plate 22 Russian bishop blessing the Kollyva memorial dishes at the liturgical commemoration of the dead
Plate 23 Vasily Grigorevich Perov (1834–1882), Easter Procession in the Country
Plate 24 Emperor John VIII Palaeologos depicted as one of the Magi by Benozzo Gozzoli (1420–1497)
Plate 25 Mikhail Vasilievich Nesterov (1862–1942), The Philosophers (Pavel Florensky and Sergius Bulgakov)
Plate 26 The Cathedral of St. Basil, Red Square, Moscow
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Plate</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>27</td>
<td>Monastic cells of the monks at the Sinaya Monastery, Romania</td>
<td>300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>28</td>
<td>A hermitage in the complex of buildings at the Romanian women’s monastery at Varatec</td>
<td>300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>29</td>
<td>Fresco of the Virgin Mary from the Monastery Church of St. Antony, Egypt</td>
<td>307</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30</td>
<td>Contemporary icon of the Divine Trinity (after Rublev)</td>
<td>311</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>31</td>
<td>An Orthodox church cantor</td>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32</td>
<td>Nun painting an icon</td>
<td>327</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>33</td>
<td>Part of the newly restored gallery of priceless icons preserved at St. Catherine’s Monastery, Mount Sinai, Egypt</td>
<td>328</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>34</td>
<td>An icon-screen of an Orthodox church (iconostasis)</td>
<td>330</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>35</td>
<td>Russian Orthodox icon of the Virgin Mary, Theotokos, or Mother of God</td>
<td>331</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>36</td>
<td>Pilgrim carrying Orthodox cross</td>
<td>349</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37</td>
<td>One of the nuns in the Varatec monastic community in Romania</td>
<td>353</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>38</td>
<td>The western outside wall of the 16th-century church at Voronets, Romania, depicting the Doomsday</td>
<td>358</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>39</td>
<td>Orthodox monk wearing the kamilavki (hat) sounding the monastic tantalon (bell for service) with the semandron (wooden hammer beam) in the corner</td>
<td>361</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>40</td>
<td>Orthodox wedding ritual</td>
<td>380</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>41</td>
<td>St. Peter Moghila</td>
<td>389</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>42</td>
<td>Romanian nun carrying basket of Paschal painted eggs</td>
<td>392</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>43</td>
<td>Romanian monastary of Simbata de Sus</td>
<td>392</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>44</td>
<td>Liturgical procession at Optina Hermitage</td>
<td>424</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>45</td>
<td>Optina Hermitage recently restored</td>
<td>424</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>46</td>
<td>A Coptic monk in the Monastery of St. Antony, Egypt</td>
<td>427</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47</td>
<td>Pope Shenouda, leader of the world’s Coptic Orthodox faithful</td>
<td>427</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>48</td>
<td>Coptic fresco of Christ in glory from the Monastery of St. Antony by the Red Sea</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>49</td>
<td>Orthodox priest wearing the phelonion vestment and the pectoral cross (stavrophore)</td>
<td>445</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>50</td>
<td>The medieval pilgrim’s entrance gate to the Monastery of the Holy Trinity at Sergiev Posad, near Moscow</td>
<td>450</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>51</td>
<td>Icon of the Protecting Veil depicting the Holy Fool Andrew</td>
<td>460</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>52</td>
<td>Bishop in the Monastery of St. John on Patmos, Greece, talking to two monks</td>
<td>461</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>53</td>
<td>Exhuming relics of the saints at Optina Hermitage</td>
<td>466</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>54</td>
<td>A reliquary containing the remains of several saints</td>
<td>466</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>55</td>
<td>Icon of the myrrh-bearing women at the tomb</td>
<td>470</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>56</td>
<td>The monastic cells (living quarters) of Rohia Monastery in Northern Romania</td>
<td>472</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>57</td>
<td>The seminarians’ chapel of Sergiev Posad Academy, near Moscow</td>
<td>493</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>58</td>
<td>The Danilovsky Monastery, Moscow</td>
<td>494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>59</td>
<td>Patriarch Kiril, head of the Russian Orthodox Church</td>
<td>494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plate</td>
<td>Illustration</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>---------</td>
<td>-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>60</td>
<td>The Monastery of the Holy Trinity, Sergiev Posad, one of the homes of the Moscow Patriarch</td>
<td>495</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>61</td>
<td>Icon of St. Antony of Egypt, father of monks</td>
<td>508</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>62</td>
<td>The tiny cave where St. Antony of Egypt spent forty years in solitary prayer, now a shrine many hundreds of feet above the monastery dedicated to his name by the Red Sea in Egypt</td>
<td>509</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>63</td>
<td>Contemporary icon of St. Cyril of Alexandria</td>
<td>518</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>64</td>
<td>Portrait of St. Elizaveta Feodorovna as Princess “Ella” before her widowhood and monastic profession</td>
<td>522</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>65</td>
<td>Icon of St. Nicholas, 10th century, from the Monastery of St. Catherine, Mount Sinai, Egypt</td>
<td>541</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>66</td>
<td>Domes of the Kiev Pechersky Lavra</td>
<td>543</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>67</td>
<td>St. Seraphim of Sarov</td>
<td>547</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>68</td>
<td>Icon of St. Sergius of Radonezh</td>
<td>548</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>69</td>
<td>Portrait of St. Tikhon (Belavin)</td>
<td>554</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70</td>
<td>The fortified monastery of St. Catherine at Sinai, built by Emperor Justinian in the 6th century</td>
<td>573</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>71</td>
<td>Once the only way into the Sinai monastery was to be wound up in a wicker basket on a rope, into the entrance high up in the wall</td>
<td>574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>72</td>
<td>Ukrainian folk group celebrating the feast of the Theophany</td>
<td>593</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>73</td>
<td>Mother of Tenderness</td>
<td>595</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>74</td>
<td>The Kiev Mohyla Academy, founded by the great Ukrainian hierarch Peter Moghila</td>
<td>605</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>75</td>
<td>St. Jonah's skete in midtown Kiev</td>
<td>606</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>76</td>
<td>An Orthodox bishop wearing the mantya robe and carrying the episcopal staff (rabydos) presides over the Vespers service</td>
<td>621</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>77</td>
<td>A convent workshop in Romania</td>
<td>623</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>78</td>
<td>Romanian nun of the community of Voronets engaged in making candles</td>
<td>624</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>79</td>
<td>A nun of the Romanian community of Voronets outside the famous “painted church”</td>
<td>636</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
EDITORS AND CONTRIBUTORS

Editor

John Anthony McGuckin, Union Theological Seminary, New York, USA

Associate Editors

Julia Konstantinovsky, Wolfson College, Oxford, UK
Justin M. Lasser, Columbia University, USA

Contributors

Stamenka E. Antonova, Columbia University, USA
Antonia Atanasova, Boston College, USA
Gordon N. Bardos, Columbia University, USA
Timothy J. Becker, Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, USA
Nicholas Birns, New School, New York, USA
Peter C. Bouteneff, St Vladimir’s Seminary, USA
Kenneth Carveley, University of Oxford, UK
Augustine Casiday, University of Wales, Lampeter, UK
John Chryssavgis, Theological Advisor to the Ecumenical Patriarch, USA
Dimitri Conomos, University of Oxford and University of London, UK
Theodor Damian, Metropolitan College of New York, USA
George E. Demacopoulos, Fordham University, USA
Edward Epsen, Champlain College, USA
Thomas FitzGerald, Holy Cross Greek Orthodox School of Theology, USA
Bruce Foltz, Eckerd College, Florida, USA
Todd E. French, Columbia University, USA
Konstantin Gavrilkin, Christ the Savior Orthodox Church (The Orthodox Church of America), USA
Paul Gavrilyuk, University of St. Thomas, USA
Paschalis Gkortsilas, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece
Tamara Grdzelidze, World Council of Churches, Switzerland
Perry T. Hamalis, North Central College, USA
Chad Hatfield, St. Vladimir’s Seminary, USA
Susan R. Holman, Harvard School of Public Health, USA
Andrei I. Holodny, Weill Medical College of Cornell University, USA
Cyril Hovorun, Metropolitan’s Administration, Kiev Caves Lavra, Ukraine
Brenda Llewellyn Ihssen, Pacific Lutheran University, USA
Valentina Izmirlieva, Columbia University, USA
Metropolitan Kallistos, Bishop of Diokleia, UK
Evangelos Katafylis, University of Cambridge, UK
Scott M. Kenworthy, Miami University, USA
Thomas Kitson, Columbia University, USA
Julia Konstantinovsky, Wolfson College, University of Oxford, UK
Justin M. Lasser, Columbia University, USA
Andrew Louth, University of Durham, UK
Maria Gwyn McDowell, Boston College, USA
John A. McGuckin, Columbia University, USA
Samuel Nedelsky, Monastery of St. Job of Pochaev, Germany
Wendy Paula Nicholson, University of Southampton, UK
Irina Paert, Tallinn University, Estonia
Aristotle Papanikolaou, Fordham University, USA
Eugen J. Pentiuc, Holy Cross School of Theology, USA
Matthew J. Pereira, Columbia University, USA
Jeffrey B. Pettis, Fordham University, USA
Marcus Plesed, Institute for Orthodox Christian Studies, Cambridge, UK
Andrei Psarev, St. Tikhon’s Orthodox Seminary, Pennsylvania
Dan Sandu, Alexandru Ioan Cuza University of Iasi, Romania
Vera Shevzov, Smith College, USA
A. Edward Siecienski, Richard Stockton College of New Jersey, USA
James C. Skedros, Holy Cross School of Theology, USA
M. C. Steenberg, Trinity and All Saints, Leeds, UK
Theodore G. Stylianopoulos, Holy Cross Greek Orthodox School of Theology, USA
Stephen Thomas, Southampton, UK
Tenny Thomas, Union Theological Seminary, USA
Tarmo Toom, Catholic University of America, USA
Sergey Trostyanskiy, Columbia University, USA
Niki J. Tsironis, The National Hellenic Research Foundation, Greece
Sotirios A. Vlavianos, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece
Monica M. White, University of Nottingham, UK
Philip Zymaris, Holy Cross Greek Orthodox School of Theology, USA
Orthodoxy is old Christianity, but not antique; for it retains a freshness about it which belies all attempts (by its enemies and some of its supporters) to render it into a sustained exercise in antiquarianism. It is old in wisdom, we like to think, but fresh in its evangelical spirit: renewed by that Omega which is also the Alpha, the beginning, not simply the end. It is a Christian experience that many think they know, and often characterize in terms of its "traditionalism," its slowness to react to many things. This of course can often be a good thing. Being dogged, for example, allowed Orthodoxy to outlive, and more than outlive, its persecutors of the 20th century who greatly outmatched the ferocity of the ancient persecutors of the church; for the 20th century was (by any account) the age of the greatest persecutions the Church of Christ has ever endured. No Nero, Diocletian, or Galerius could ever match up to the oppressions put upon the Eastern Church by the Stalins, Hoxhas, or Ceaușescus of the age of totalitarians. In this gloomy herding together of the Eastern Orthodox world by communist authorities, the witness had to be one of the most basic facts of endurance. Those who know Orthodoxy more intimately than simply seeing its quaintness or its traditionalism will recognize its heroic witness in the course of the 20th century.

Today, after the irreversible fall into the dust of so many of these tyrants, who once thought they would rule forever, the intoxicating sense of joyful liberation has often passed away too, in much of Soviet-zone Eastern Europe, and the colder breezes of reality coming after the heady 1990s have been felt. Serious economic and social disorders are still to be dealt with as a long-lasting legacy of the destruction communism left behind itself. For the Orthodox Church, which suffered the purging of so many of its leaders over so many decades, and the wholesale destruction of its social mission, its church buildings, and its educational system, a similar scale of traumatic damage is undoubtedly going to be a legacy that will continue for a few generations to come. After such levels of trauma, recovery takes longer than after simple setbacks. It is perhaps the destiny of our times to see Orthodoxy climbing back up from its knees once more, while at the same time Christian practice and culture in Western Europe seems to enter into a new bleak era, neglected and despised by an alleged new humanism which mocks its own ancestral religious tradition as well as its ancient and inseparable moral and intellectual heritage: things which betoken long-term social problems in terms of the transmission of societal civilized values and ethico-social cohesion in western societies.

Orthodoxy, while always having a robust sense of its theological identity, is in the course of this present era in a constant state of flux; involving growth, but also drawing the Eastern Church into areas of indeterminate conditions: strange environments it has not yet been fully able to parallel with familiar ancient precedents so as to help it navigate towards a new hermeneutic. Sometimes western commentators, however unbalanced they may be, have been given a hearing as they attempted to draw the boundaries of civilization as concomitant with the western political and religious borders of the Mediterranean, excluding the Orthodox nations as if they were of little or no importance. This position (which in my mind is a cleverly masked form of prejudice) conveniently forgets that Orthodoxy has had its schools smashed by hostile conquerors or oppressive totalitarians not only for the last seventy years, but for the last five hundred. How many centuries does it take to reestablish an intellectual tradition? A life of the mind to match the élan of a cultural and artistic fabric? While the West was establishing the Renaissance on the base of its late medieval university cities, the Christian East was falling relentlessly before ascendant Islamic military might. It was a submergence into a forcibly imposed Sharia law, a twilight existence for a conquered ethnos, that permitted partial cultic existence to the Orthodox Church but certainly not an independently continuing intellectual life. The schools, seminaries, printing presses, and caucuses of intellectuals belonging to the Orthodox were mostly doomed and soon were almost all entirely extinguished except for symbolic residues – those few able to secure their independence from the power of the Ottomans, or to pay for a limited degree of autonomy. After the fall of Constantinople in 1453, Russia continued on, and Ukraine, Romania, Athos, and Sinai became, at various times, fortresses of Orthodox culture under immense external pressures. But even so, Orthodoxy lost its university ethos definitively; lost its broadly spread intelligentsia, its sponsoring aristocracy; lost therefore its grasp on the tiller of culture-making – a role it had so clearly excelled in for its first millennium. Instead, it had to, by force of hostile circumstance, turn more inward towards cultural and ecclesiastic preservation. Nothing replaced the university and aristocratic caucuses (the leavening effect of the imperial court and its ability to attract international talent to the Orthodox center) and monastic culture took up the fallen crown. Monastic leadership has guided and safeguarded Orthodoxy ever since, and made a faithful job of it; but the wider intellectual culture of the Eastern Church was inevitably narrowed into slower and more mystical channels than Orthodoxy had known as part of its vital fabric in earlier, more independent and more flourishing political circumstances. Those who in recent centuries have often scorned or mocked the alleged inability of Orthodox theologians and church leaders to match the intellectual sophistication of the West, are often laughing, albeit unwittingly, at the sorrows of conquered peoples – in a manner like the Queen of France who thought cake would substitute sufficiently well for the lack of bread.

Orthodox Christian intellectual life, however, once shone radiantly in so many periods past, and just as at times its radiance seemed self-assured, so too, just as often, historic reversals and disasters have dimmed it, sometimes crushed it for many generations. The schools of Byzantium were once a model to the world, reformulating the glories of patristic eloquence and extending their spirit of biblical interpretation so as to make a sustained set of variations on Roman Law and Civilization, such that the ages of Byzantium truly became a monument of world Christian culture. But even at their height these cultural achievements were cut short. Long before the last emperor fell in the Saint Romanos gate at Constantinople in 1453, the eastern Roman capital’s intellectual life was a shadow of its former vitality. It was falling prey to the temptation to live in a virtual reality (a temptation the Orthodox Church must resist in all generations). To take one example: the medieval scholar Theodore Metochites, a leading Byzantine astronomer, Grand Logothete of the Empire, and the builder of that exquisite Constantinopolitan church St. Savior in Chora, used the newly invented Arabian astrolabe for all his practical navigational computations, but continued to comment at length upon Ptolemy. He looked and touched, but did not see. Constantinople towards the end of its glory had, for several centuries, nurtured the exiles from other major Christian centers of learning, such as Edessa, Alexandria, Antioch, Caesarea, or Jerusalem, all of which themselves had once shone bright with the flash of Greek Fire as schools of Christian learning in Antiquity but which, one by one, had fallen to the ravages of enemies or time, and often ceased to exist as Christian centers at all. After the collapse of Byzantium the Russian tsars saw themselves as the inheritors of the duty to protect Orthodoxy, calling their nation “The Third Rome.”

Today, although Russian Orthodoxy is by far the largest power bloc of the world Orthodox families, no one seriously expects a Christian tsar to reemerge; and not all have happy memories about the tsar’s effect on the church when he was master of the Russian Empire. The patriarchate of Constantinople was used by the Ottoman sultans in a way that gave it, through the late medieval period and through to the end of the 19th century, an international prestige as leader of all Eastern Christians in the Ottoman imperial domains. But today the Phanar suffers, and its local Christians have dwindled to the point of vanishing. Its ecclesiastical and political base now effectively resides in North America and Australia. However, it retains its ancient prestige among world Orthodoxy, in a way excelling the other ancient patriarchates such as Alexandria or Antioch or Jerusalem, who retain more of a ceremonial role in world Orthodox affairs. By the grace of God the patriarch of Constantinople has not dwindled to the status of a canonical “virtual reality” and still exercises a high moral authority above and beyond his role in specific legal church affairs. Other Orthodox patriarchs who were once long silenced, or degraded by oppressors, have again come into freedom. The presence of learned and insightful leaders in these high patriarchal sees will continue to be of critical importance in this age of mass media. But as articulators of world Orthodoxy the collective Sobor of these national patriarchs increasingly has to look beyond their nations and national interests, to wider and more inclusive horizons. The reemergence of the large Eastern European Orthodox Churches has changed the world scene definitively as the 21st century now progresses; and what world Orthodoxy will do in the coming century remains to be seen. But the prospects look good, and hopeful, as new and highly educated leaders emerge, and the schools and monasteries, theological academies and church social projects slowly come back into existence across the former communist world.

Orthodoxy also started to come of age in the New World in the latter part of the 20th century. It developed a significant body of theologians who are at once contemporary and yet rooted in past precedents, and commonly joined together in a spiritual harmony bearing a deep respect for tradition. In this, modern Orthodoxy has, in a real sense, an advantage that its theologians and spiritual teachers, its bishops, and patriarchs are all, genuinely, bonded together in the faith, and share that faith with the laity, intelligent or simple, in a way that many other ecclesial groups in the West cannot any longer sustain. These things will prove to be great resources for an intellectual flowering of Orthodox intellectual life in the 21st century. Orthodoxy’s spiritual resources, its monastic centers, its continued central focus on liturgy and prayer, on the fidelity to the gifts of the Spirit, remain at its core; and as long as they do the inner life and spirit of the church will itself remain evergreen.

Today, unarguably so, there are also numerous international signs of a reviving intellectual life among the Orthodox Greeks, Russians, Romanians, Serbs, and many other Orthodox church families. Several historic theological faculties have reopened or have been newly founded, all promising signs for the future. Throughout the English-speaking world, Orthodoxy is beginning to be represented in several secular schools of higher learning, and engaging with Protestant and Catholic iterations of theology on its own terms, offering its distinctive voice in the expression of Christian theological concern on matters of doctrine, ethics, ecumenicity, and worship.

This encyclopedia has been written, almost entirely so, out of the talents of English-speaking Orthodox thinkers, across a wide international spectrum. It is therefore one of the few existing resources, of the highest intellectual standard, that allow Orthodoxy to speak with its own voice, in its own intonations, no longer as a subaltern. What has emerged is authentically Orthodox scholarship in full engagement with historic and theological evidences, open in mentality and aspect, and at the same time deeply rooted in its values and spiritual traditions and proud to articulate them. The encyclopedia is itself one bright sign of the emerging revival of Orthodox intellectual life at the highest levels of the Academy, offering a reference resource for the life and culture of Eastern Christianity which will, on publication, be the largest and one of the most authoritative reference works in the English language for world Orthodoxy.

It has been a privilege and a pleasure working with all the contributors who are acknowledged national and international experts in their own fields. It has also been a delight to have worked with Wiley-Blackwell’s team of professionals. The press not only sponsored and encouraged this work from the outset, but have been at pains to make it appear in the most artistic way possible; aligning their skill in technology with a clear eye for the beautiful (to kalon). In hard copy, this is a lovely set of volumes that will grace any study and enhance any academic library as an indispensable study tool. In its electronic form this is destined to be a worldwide resource that will illuminate matters of the Eastern Christian tradition at the touch of a button — something that the ancient Orthodox theologians and mystics would surely have wondered at. Special thanks are due to Wiley-Blackwell’s Executive Commissioning Editor, Rebecca Harkin, whose enthusiasm moved the project towards the light of day. Thanks too are owed to Sophie Oliver for her indefatigable work in putting the materials together on the Web, to Brigitte Lee Messenger and Jack Messenger for copyediting, and to Barbara Duke and Jane Taylor for their labors in production and image management.

The encyclopedia benefited notably from the wisdom and critical insight of Revd. Dr. Konstantin Gavrilkin, who also contributed many of the articles relating to Slavic Orthodoxy. The Assistant Editors are both young Orthodox intellectuals whose research has already broken new ground. The first, the Revd. Dr. Julia (Seraphima) Konstantinovsky, a monastic of the community of Fr. Sophronios in Essex and now a tutor in the Oxford University Faculty of Theology, is an expert in early Christian studies, and a world-class perita in matters relating to the spiritual tradition of early monastic communities, especially the Greek and Syriac circles around Evagrios Pontike. Dr. Justin Lasser has worked in fields as disparate as the Nag Hammadi Gnostic texts, Proto-Syrian Christianity (with a doctoral dissertation from Union Theological Seminary on the Thomas tradition), and Ethiopian Orthodoxy, learning Ge’ez along with Coptic, Greek, and Syriac to enable him better to understand the world of the early fathers and mothers. It has been a delight to work alongside them both, and to feel that with such a “Cloud of Witnesses” as these, and the splendid array of writers that we amassed for this project, the appearance of this encyclopedia is not an errant swallow, but a further sign of what a great patristic divine, John Henry Newman, himself once called (in a different time and circumstance) a “Second Spring.”

It is with pleasure, and a sense of a very large and important scholarly task brought to a fine completion, that I can now put this work before the reading public, more than confident too that it will serve the affairs of Church and Academy luminously for many decades to come.

V. Revd. Prof. John A. McGuckin
Priest of the Romanian Orthodox Church
Feast of the Learned Hierarch St. Grigorie Dascalu, Metropolitan of the Romanians
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Map</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Map 1</td>
<td>The Early Christian world</td>
<td>xxv</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Map 2</td>
<td>Early Christian Egypt</td>
<td>xxvi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Map 3</td>
<td>Early Christian Rome</td>
<td>xxvii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Map 4</td>
<td>Constantinople</td>
<td>xxviii</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Map 1  The Early Christian world.
Map 2  Early Christian Egypt.
Map 3 Early Christian Rome.