

The Wiley-Blackwell Companion to

CULTURAL GEOGRAPHY

Edited by Nuala C. Johnson, Richard H. Schein, and Jamie Winders

WILEY-BLACKWELL

Table of Contents

Wiley-Blackwell Companions to Geography

Title page

Copyright page

Notes on Contributors

Chapter 1 Introduction

Volume Structure/Summary

Theoretical Dispatches

Chapter 2 Postcolonialism

1

2

3

Chapter 3 Poststructuralism

Chapter 4 Feminist Theory

Chapter 5 Materialities

Chapter 6 Affect

Chapter 7 Historical Materialism

Foundations

Chapter 8 Cultural Geography in Practice

Introduction

Cultural Practice as Cultural Geography

Creative Public Geographies

Boundary Crossings: Geography, Art, and Collaboration

Conclusion

Chapter 9 Critical “Race” Approaches

The Geographical Concept of Race

Anti-Racist Geography in Context

New Directions in Anti-Racist Geography:
Reontologizing the Subject?

Political Anti-Racist Geographies for the Twenty-
First Century

Chapter 10 Gender

Destabilizing Gender Binaries

Current Debates

Chapter 11 Social Class Position, Place, Culture, and Meaning

Introduction: Class Matters

What Is Class?

Class and Community

Post-Fordist Class Change: Two Gender-Specific Structures?

Class Beliefs, Class Cultures, the Body, and the Home

Transnational Class Mobility

Conclusions

Chapter 12 Geographies of Sexualities The Cultural Turn and After

Spacing Sexual Difference: Gay, Lesbian, "Queer"

Interrogating the "Center": Heterosexualities

Envisioning Critical Geographies of Heteronormativity

Chapter 13 Place

Approaching Place

Crafting Place

Rethinking Place

Chapter 14 Nationalism

Taking Nationalism More Seriously

Nationalism and Territory

Ethnic versus Civic Nationalism

Long-Distance Nationalism

Religion and Nationalism

Gender and Nationalism

Nationalism and Landscape

Conclusion

Chapter 15 Object Lessons From Batholith to Bookend

Introduction

Formation and Extraction

Maintenance and Malfunction

Rescue and Reinscription

Circulation and Consumption

Disposal and Dispossession

Salvage and Storytelling

Conclusions

Landscapes

Chapter 16 Economic Landscapes

Introduction

Housing and Homeownership

Constructing a Market for Homeownership

Concluding Remarks: From Geographies of Prime to Sub-Prime Lending

Chapter 17 Political Landscapes

Political Scenes

Nation, Nominalism, and Landscape

Paper Landscapes: Maps, Borderlands, and Zones of Contact

Nature's Landscape and the Body Politic(s)

Concluding Comments

Chapter 18 Landscapes of Memory and Socially Just Futures

The Importance of Landscape to Memory
Approaches and Possibilities

Chapter 19 Consumption and Landscape

The Visual Consumption of Landscape
The Ways Landscapes are Commodified
How Consumption Produces (Real and Imagined) Landscapes
The Ways Landscapes are Literally Consumed
Landscaping as Consumption

Chapter 20 Landscape and Justice

Introduction
Why Justice?
The Politics of Landscape
Landscape as Polity and Place of Justice
European Conventions
Conclusion: Landscapes of Justice

Chapter 21 Rural Landscapes

Landscape Perspectives
Rural Landscape/History
Rural Landscape/Cultural Politics
Rural Landscapes/Performance
Rural Landscape/Assemblage
Resetting Landscape Perspectives

Chapter 22 Seeing Seeing Seeing the Legal Landscape

Introduction

The Culture Question

The Law Idea

Law and/as Culture

The Practice of Landscape Theorization

The Unseeable

Seeing Seeing the Landscape: Aesthetic Nuisance Litigation

Chapter 23 Aging

Introduction

Intergenerationality, Life Course, Transitions: Alternatives to the Compartmentalization of Youth and Old Age

Generations Apart: Age Ghettos and the Socio-Spatial Regulation of Age

Conclusions

Chapter 24 Children/Youth

A Short History of Children's Geographies

Landscapes of Childhood and Youth

Conclusion

Chapter 25 Urban Landscapes

Re-reading the KL Skyline

The Skyscraper More-than-Representationally Reconsidered

Encountering the Travels of KL Landscapes
Conclusion

Chapter 26 Domesticities

Theoretical Lineages

Feminism

Postcolonialism

Material Culture

Domestication

Domesticities at Home \(1\): Making the House-as-Home

Domesticities at Home \(2\): More-than-Human

Domesticities

Domesticities and Colonization

Conclusion

Natures/Cultures

Chapter 27 Choosing Metaphors for the Anthropocene Cultural and Political Ecologies

Society from the Soil: The Specter of Evolutionism and Determinism

Hardwiring: Functional Materialism and Biosocial Thinking

Adaptation: The Politics of Environmental Adjustment

Systems: Cybernetic Simplifications and Technical Control

Networks: Entering a Labyrinth of Objects
Choosing Environmental Metaphors for the Anthropocene

Chapter 28 Biotechnologies and Biomedicine

Introduction
Agricultural Biotechnology
Epistemologies, Ethics, and Economics of Contemporary Biotechnologies
Medical Devices and Tissue Engineering
Synthetic Biologies: Constructing the Future

Chapter 29 Animal Geographies

Introduction
Forms of Animal Geographies
Conclusions

Chapter 30 Food's Cultural Geographies Texture, Creativity, and Publics

Introduction
Texture
Creativity
Publics
Conclusions

Chapter 31 Environmental Histories

Managing Nature
Environmental Politics

[The Longue Durée: Transnational and World
Environmental History
Landscape, Bodies, and Disease
Urban Environmental History, Urban Political Ecology
Animals
Conclusion](#)

Chapter 32 Science Wars

[A Couple of Cautionary Tales
Reterritorializing Battlelines
Theaters of Engagement
Trading Zones
Wider Domains
Acknowledgments](#)

Circulations/Networks/Fixities

[Chapter 33 From Global Dispossession to Local Repossession Towards a Worldly
Cultural Geography of Occupy Activism
Acknowledgments](#)

Chapter 34 Political Moves Cultural Geographies of Migration and Difference

[Structuring Migration and Controlling Migrants
Migrant Subjectivities
Migrant Activism and Diverse Tactics](#)

Conclusion

Chapter 35 Mappings

Introduction

Cartographic Revolutions

Sovereignty and Knowledge: The Emergence of Modern Mapping

Thematic Maps and State-istics

Returning to Keyhole

The Possibilities of “Counter-Mapping”

Conclusion

Chapter 36 Landscape, Locative Media, and the Duplicity of Code

Introduction

Coded Landscapes and the Duplicity of Code

New Visualities, New Visibilities: Objects of a Coded Gaze

Coding Bodies: Subjects of/to Locative Media

Coding Memory and Memorialization

Conclusion

Chapter 37 Affect and Emotion

Hope

Affect/Emotion and the Concept of Culture

The Politics of Affect and Emotion

Concluding Comments

Acknowledgments

Chapter 38 Tourism

Introduction

Critiques of Tourism Capitalism

Working Lives and Livelihoods

Encounter

Sensory Encounters: Beyond Ethical Essentialism

Toward a Relational (and Spatial) Ethics of Tourism?

Conclusion

Chapter 39 Borders and Border-Crossings

Borders: Neglected Elements in Cultural Geography?

The Expansion of Border Studies since the 1990s
Cultural Borders and the Challenge of Relational
Thinking

Borders and Identities

Parallel Modalities of Borders

Future Challenges

Chapter 40 The Imperial Present Geography, Imperialism, and its Continued Effects

Introduction

Imperialism, Postcolonialism, and Geography

Imperialism and Discourse

Imperialism and Resistance

Conclusion: Imperialism's Continued Effects

Acknowledgments

Chapter 41 Postcolonialism

Introduction

Postcolonialism in Geography

Colonialism, Geographic Knowledge, and Postcolonial Practices

Charting (Post)colonial Spaces and Identities

Postcolonial Geographies of Encounters and Resistance

Conclusion: Locating Postcolonial Geographies

Index

Wiley-Blackwell Companions to Geography

Wiley-Blackwell Companions to Geography is a blue-chip, comprehensive series covering each major subdiscipline of human geography in detail. Edited and contributed by the disciplines' leading authorities, each book provides the most up-to-date and authoritative syntheses available in its field. The overviews provided in each Companion will be an indispensable introduction to the field for students of all levels, while the cutting-edge, critical direction will engage students, teachers, and practitioners alike.

Published

A Companion to Political Geography

Edited by John Agnew, Katharyne Mitchell, and Gerard Toal (Gearoid O Tuathail)

A Companion to Cultural Geography

Edited by James S. Duncan, Nuala C. Johnson, and Richard H. Schein

A Companion to Tourism

Edited by Alan A. Lew, C. Michael Hall, and Allan M. Williams

A Companion to Feminist Geography

Edited by Lise Nelson and Joni Seager

A Companion to Environmental Geography

Edited by Noel Castree, David Demeritt, Diana Liverman, and Bruce Rhoads

A Companion to Health and Medical Geography

Edited by Tim Brown, Sara McLafferty, and Graham Moon

A Companion to Social Geography

Edited by Vincent J. Del Casino, Jr., Mary Thomas, Ruth Panelli, and Paul Cloke

The Wiley-Blackwell Companion to Human Geography

Edited by John A. Agnew and James S. Duncan

The Wiley-Blackwell Companion to Economic Geography

Edited by Eric Sheppard, Trevor J. Barnes, and Jamie Peck

The Wiley-Blackwell Companion to Cultural Geography

Edited by Nuala C. Johnson, Richard H. Schein, and Jamie Winders

Also available:

The New Blackwell Companion to the City

Edited by Gary Bridge and Sophie Watson

The Blackwell Companion to Globalization

Edited by George Ritzer

The Handbook of Geographic Information Science

Edited by John Wilson and Stewart Fotheringham

The Wiley-Blackwell Companion to Cultural Geography

Edited by

Nuala C. Johnson, Richard H. Schein, and Jamie Winders

WILEY-BLACKWELL

A John Wiley & Sons, Ltd., Publication

This edition first published 2013

© 2013 John Wiley & Sons Ltd

Wiley-Blackwell is an imprint of John Wiley & Sons, formed by the merger of Wiley's global Scientific, Technical and Medical business with Blackwell Publishing.

Registered Office

John Wiley & Sons Ltd, The Atrium, Southern Gate,
Chichester, West Sussex, PO19 8SQ, UK

Editorial Offices

350 Main Street, Malden, MA 02148-5020, USA

9600 Garsington Road, Oxford, OX4 2DQ, UK

The Atrium, Southern Gate, Chichester, West Sussex, PO19
8SQ, UK

For details of our global editorial offices, for customer services, and for information about how to apply for permission to reuse the copyright material in this book please see our website at www.wiley.com/wiley-blackwell.

The right of Nuala C. Johnson, Richard H. Schein, and Jamie Winders to be identified as the authors of the editorial material in this work has been asserted in accordance with the UK Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, except as permitted by the UK Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, without the prior permission of the publisher.

Wiley also publishes its books in a variety of electronic formats. Some content that appears in print may not be available in electronic books.

Designations used by companies to distinguish their products are often claimed as trademarks. All brand names and product names used in this book are trade names, service marks, trademarks or registered trademarks of their respective owners. The publisher is not associated with any product or vendor mentioned in this book. This publication is designed to provide accurate and authoritative information in regard to the subject matter covered. It is sold on the understanding that the publisher is not engaged in rendering professional services. If professional advice or other expert assistance is required, the services of a competent professional should be sought.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

The Wiley-Blackwell companion to cultural geography /
edited by Nuala C. Johnson, Richard H. Schein, and Jamie Winders.

pages cm. – (Blackwell companions to geography)

Includes index.

ISBN 978-0-470-65559-7 (hardback)

1. Human geography. I. Johnson, Nuala Christina, 1962–

GF41.W534 2013

304.2—dc23

2012038979

Cover image: La Grande Arche du Palais (de la Grande Arche de la Défense au Port du Palais) from the series “Le Triomphe de Belle-Île-en-Mer,” 1964–1994 (collage and photo), by Gerard Fromanger / Private Collection / Giraudon
/ The Bridgeman Art Library

Cover design by Design Deluxe

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Notes on Contributors

John Agnew is Distinguished Professor of Geography and Italian at UCLA (University of California, Los Angeles) where he teaches political geography and the urban geography of Europe. He is the author or co-author of the following recent books: Place and Politics in Modern Italy (2002); Hegemony: The New Shape of Global Power (2005); Berlusconi's Italy: Mapping Contemporary Italian Politics (2008); and Globalization and Sovereignty (2009).

Derek H. Alderman is Professor and Head of the Department of Geography at the University of Tennessee. His research interests include the politics of public memory and heritage tourism in the American South, particularly the commemoration of the civil rights movement and the slave experience. He is the co-author (with Owen Dwyer) of Civil Rights Memorials and the Geography of Memory (2008).

Ben Anderson is a Reader in human geography at Durham University. His current research focuses on the politics of affect and emotion, with particular reference to spaces of war and security in the early twenty-first century. His most recent work has focused on how states govern in and through emergencies.

Andrew Boulton is a PhD candidate in the Department of Geography, University of Kentucky. His research focuses on the intersections of cultural landscapes and emerging locative media.

Tim Bunnell is Associate Professor in the Department of Geography at the National University of Singapore, where he also holds a joint appointment in the Asia Research Institute. He moved to Singapore after completing doctoral work at the University of Nottingham on the politics of urban landscape change in Malaysia and is the author of Malaysia, Modernity and the Multimedia Super Corridor: A Critical Geography of Intelligent Landscapes (2004).

Paul Cloke is Professor of Human Geography at the University of Exeter, with research interests in social and cultural geographies of rurality, nature-society relations, ethics and care, and landscapes of spirituality. He is co-author of the following recent books: Globalizing Responsibility (2011); A Companion to Social Geography (2011); Swept Up Lives? Re-envisioning the Homeless City (2010); International Perspectives on Rural Homelessness (2006); and Faith-based organisations and exclusion in European cities (2012).

Ian Cook and Peter Jackson, Allison Hayes-Conroy, Sebastian Abrahamsson, Rebecca Sandover, Mimi Sheller, Heike Henderson, Lucius Hallett, Shoko Imai, Damian Maye, and Ann Hill, are a collection of faculty, post-docs, and students who came together to write their chapter online in 2010-2012. They all study food from different perspectives, and not all as cultural geographers. More information about their work can be found at foodculturalgeographies.wordpress.com.

Meghan Cope is Professor of Geography at the University of Vermont. A specialist in urban social geography, she examines how urban spaces and landscapes are produced and how different groups, especially youth and children, use, redefine, and make sense of those spaces. Cope also focuses on combining qualitative research with geographic information systems (GIS).

Jeremy W. Crampton is Associate Professor of Geography at the University of Kentucky. His research on mapping and the state has covered the role of geographers during World Wars I and II, and how geographical knowledges are produced through mapping technologies. He is currently working on the geographies of the US intelligence community and its use of social-geographic analysis. His most recent book is Mapping: A Critical Introduction to Cartography and GIS (Wiley-Blackwell, 2010).

Declan Cullen is a doctoral candidate in geography at Syracuse University. His research uses postcolonial theory to examine Newfoundland, Canada, in the 1930s and its place in wider transatlantic flows and political-economic transitions. He has also examined the relationship between race, nation, and the diaspora in early twentieth-century Ireland, through a postcolonial lens.

David Delaney is the author of Race, Place and the Law (1998), Law and Nature (2003), Territory: A Short Introduction (2005, Blackwell), and The Spatial, the Legal and the Pragmatics of World-Making: Nomospheric Investigations (2011) as well as numerous articles on the theme of legal geography. He is also the co-editor (with Nick Blomley and Richard T. Ford) of the Legal Geographies Reader (2001, Blackwell). He teaches in the Department of Law, Jurisprudence, and Social Thought at Amherst College.

Caitlin DeSilvey is Senior Lecturer in the Environment and Sustainability Institute at the University of Exeter. Her research explores landscape, material culture, memory, heritage management, and the intersection between geography and contemporary arts practice. Current projects include a connective ethnography of copper-mining regions, a study of anticipatory history, and a collaborative documentary project on mending and repair practices.

Deborah Dixon is Professor of Geography at the University of Glasgow. Her work is driven by an interest in the ideas, concepts, ethics, and politics of poststructuralist and feminist theories, grounded in case study analysis of monstrous, media, and marginal geographies, topics which overlap time and again in often unexpected ways.

Mona Domosh is the Joan P. and Edward J. Foley, Jr. 1933 Professor of Geography at Dartmouth College. Her research focuses on the cultural and economic practices involved in the making of an American commercial empire in the first half of the twentieth century.

Robyn Dowling is an urban cultural geographer at Macquarie University in Sydney. Her research focuses on daily practices of urban life, especially vis-à-vis homes and neighborhoods. Her current research examines the institutions and processes through which carbon is governed and the ways individual identities are imagined in these processes.

Patricia Ehrkamp is Associate Professor of Geography at the University of Kentucky. She studies the politics of immigrant incorporation and the changing geographies of citizenship in the context of migrant transnationalism. She has published widely on her research in Germany and the US South in journals such as Transactions of the Institute of British Geographers, Urban Geography, Environment and Planning A, Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies, and Gender, Place and Culture.

Berrak Çavlan Erengözgin is a doctoral student in the Department of Geography at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada. Her research interests include the Kurdish women's movement in Turkey, decolonization movements, feminisms in the Middle East, state violence, race, gender and memory, and reflexive/collaborative feminist ethnographies.

Elizabeth A. Gagen is a lecturer in geography at the University of Hull. Her research examines discourses of mental and physical health and their role in shaping bodies and identities. Her work has focused on the US playground movement and military recreation during World War I and emotional health in UK education policy.

Chris Gibson is Professor in Human Geography at the University of Wollongong, Australia. His books include Sound Tracks (2003); Music and Tourism (2005); and Creativity in Peripheral Places (2012).

Joshua F.J. Inwood is Assistant Professor in the Africana Studies Program and the Department of Geography at the University of Tennessee. His research interests focus on processes of racialization, landscape studies, and contested notions of identity as well as justice studies. His current research explores the United States' first ever truth and reconciliation commission.

Tariq Jazeel teaches human geography at the University of Sheffield in the UK. His research is situated at the intersections of postcolonial theory, South Asian studies, and critical geography, and he has published on the politics of Sri Lankan "nature" and National Parks, Sri Lanka's tropical modern architecture, literary geographies, and on various diasporic and "multicultural" formations.

Nuala C. Johnson is Reader in Geography at Queen's University Belfast. Her research focuses on nationalism and the politics of identity; public memory and monuments; literary spaces; and the historical geographies of science particularly in relation to botanical gardens and botanical illustration. She is author of Ireland, the Great War and the Geography of Remembrance (2003); Nature Displayed, Nature Displaced: Order and Beauty in Botanical Gardens (2011); and editor of Culture and Society (2008).

John Paul Jones III is Professor in the School of Geography and Development and Dean of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences at the University of Arizona. He has also taught at the University of Kentucky, where he was co-founder and co-director of that institution's Committee on Social Theory.

Audrey Kobayashi is a Professor of Geography at Queen's University (Canada). She has published widely on social justice issues including anti-racism, immigration, employment equity, and critical disability studies. Her edited collections include The Companion to Gender Studies (with David Theo Goldberg and Philomena Essed; Wiley-Blackwell, 2009) and Geographies of Peace and Armed Conflict (2012).

David N. Livingstone is Professor of Geography and Intellectual History at Queen's University Belfast. His recent books include Putting Science in its Place (2003); and Adam's Ancestors: Race, Religion and the Politics of Human Origins (2008).

Hayden Lorimer teaches at the University of Glasgow where he is a Reader in Human Geography. His research and writing cut across lots of corresponding subjects, materiality being just one of them. Others are landscape, memory, place, fieldwork, biography, and the life of the senses.

Jamie Lorimer is University Lecturer in the School of Geography and the Environment at the University of Oxford. His research develops new approaches to animal and environmental geographies that do not need to make recourse to modern understandings of nature – as a pure, stable set of objects governed solely by science and markets.

Niall Majury lectures in economic geography at Queen's University Belfast. He undertook his postgraduate training in Canada, earning degrees from the University of British Columbia and University of Toronto. His research focuses on the construction and governance of markets, in particular financial markets.

Linda McDowell is Professor of Human Geography at the University of Oxford. Her research examines connections between new forms of work and the transformation of gender relations. Her book, Working Bodies (2009), examines interactive service employment and workplace identities. Her most recent book, Working Lives (2013), is about women migrants in the postwar UK labor market.

Tom Mels is an Associate Professor of Human Geography at Gotland University, Sweden, and associate editor of Landscape Research. His research is broadly concerned with the intersections of capitalist modernity and the politics of landscape and nature.

Don Mitchell is a Distinguished Professor of Geography at Syracuse University. His research focuses on the role of labor and capital in producing landscapes, struggles over and in public space, and Marxist theories of space and culture.

John Morrissey lectures on political and cultural geography at National University of Ireland, Galway, where he is Programme Director of the MA in Environment, Society and Development. His current research is focused on contemporary US geopolitics in the Middle East and its array of military, economic and biopolitical securitization practices. He is the author of Negotiating Colonialism (2003); and co-author of Key Concepts in Historical Geography (2013).

Catherine Nash is Professor of Human Geography at Queen Mary, University of London. Her research interests are in geographies of identity, belonging and relatedness, and she is currently exploring these themes in accounts of human genetic diversity and popular historical practices.

Natalie Oswin is Assistant Professor of Geography at McGill University. Her publications include articles on South Africa's post-apartheid gay and lesbian movement, the cultural politics of heteronormativity in Singapore, and conceptual pieces on queer geographies.

Anssi Paasi is Professor of Geography at the University of Oulu and currently an Academy Professor (2008–2012) at the Academy of Finland. He has published widely on the sociocultural construction of political boundaries and spatial identities, as well as on new regional geography and region/territory building.

Bronwyn Parry is Professor of Social Science, Health and Medicine at King's College London. A geographer by training she has longstanding interests in investigating the way human–environment relations are being recast by technological, economic, and regulatory change. She has published widely on the rise and operation of the life sciences industry, informationalism, the commodification of life forms, posthumanism, bioethics, and systems for knowing, disciplining, and governing nature and is author of Trading the Genome: Investigating the Commodification of Bioinformation (2004); and Mind over Matter: Memory, Forgetting, Brain Donation and the Search for Cures for Dementia (2011).

Emma R. Power is a lecturer in geography and urban studies at the University of Western Sydney. Her research examines urban natures, everyday practices of sustainability and homemaking, and human-animal relations. Current research projects are examining the place of dogs in Australian cities.

Geraldine Pratt is Professor of Geography at the University of British Columbia. She is author of Working Feminism (2004) and Families Apart: Migrant Mothers and the Conflicts of Labor and Love (2012); co-author of Gender, Work and Space (1995); and co-editor of The Global and the Intimate: Feminism in Our Time (2012). She also co-wrote Nanay, a Testimonial Play.

Patricia L. Price is Professor of Geography at Florida International University in Miami, Florida. She researches a variety of topics including critical race theory, the comparative Latinization of US cities, popular religiosity in the US-Mexico borderlands, and ethics in geographic research with human subjects.

Paul Robbins holds a PhD from Clark University and is Director of the Nelson Institute for Environmental Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His research centers on the relationships between individuals (homeowners, hunters, and foresters), environmental actors (lawns, elk, and mosquitoes), and the institutions that connect them.

James Ryan is Associate Professor of Historical and Cultural Geography at the University of Exeter. His research interests contribute to geographies of colonialism and postcolonialism, visual culture and geography, and the history of geographical knowledge and science.

Richard H. Schein is Professor of Geography at the University of Kentucky, where he also is a member of the Committee on Social Theory and the American Studies faculty. He writes about land and landscape in the United States.

Rachel Silvey is Associate Professor of Geography at the University of Toronto. Her research examines the gendered dimensions of migration and economic change in Indonesia, as well as the role of religion in the gender politics of migration more broadly. She has published in the fields of feminist theory, critical development studies, and transnationalism.

Matthew Sparke is Professor of Geography and International Studies and Director of the Global Health Minor at the University of Washington. He is the author of In the Space of Theory: Postfoundational Geographies of the Nation-State (2005); and Introducing Globalization: Ties, Tensions and Uneven Integration (2013).

Krithika Srinivasan has recently completed a PhD from the Department of Geography, King's College London. Her research uses Michel Foucault's work on biopower to critically examine concepts and practices of wildlife conservation and animal welfare. Her academic interests encompass the arenas of environment-development, animal and more-than-human geographies, and Foucauldian theory.

Elizabeth R. Straughan is currently working as an AHRC/NSF funded postdoctoral research fellow on a project exploring art-science collaborations at the University of Glasgow. Her research considers the body through an attendance to the skin as well as the material