Contributors

Foreword

Preface

Companion website

Part One: Gastrointestinal Diseases and Disorders: The Public Health Perspective

Chapter 1: The burden of gastrointestinal and liver disease around the world

Introduction

Diarrheal disease

Gastrointestinal malignancies

Selected diseases of the liver

Selected gastrointestinal diseases

Gastrointestinal diseases responsible for hospitalization

Limitations of the data

Implications

Multiple choice questions

Appendix 1.A

References

Answers to multiple choice questions

Part Two: How to Critically Read the Gastrointestinal Epidemiology Literature

Introduction and overview

Chapter 2: How to read a cohort study

Brief introduction to cohort studies

Biases commonly seen in cohort studies

10-Point checklist of important issues when reading a report of a cohort study

Case study: Critical evaluation of cohort study

“Long-term use of aspirin and nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs and risk of colorectal cancer”

[\[8\]](#)

Multiple choice questions

References

Answers to multiple choice questions

Chapter 3: How to read a case-control study

Brief introduction to case-control studies

Biases commonly seen in case-control studies

10-Point checklist of important issues when reading a report of a case-control study

Case study: Critical evaluation of a case-control study “Effect of aspirin and NSAIDs on risk and survival from colorectal cancer”

Multiple choice questions

References

Answers to multiple choice questions

Chapter 4: How to read a randomized controlled clinical trial

Brief introduction to randomized controlled trials

Biases commonly seen in randomized controlled trials

10-Point checklist for evaluating a clinical trial

Case study: Critical evaluation example

Multiple choice questions

References

Answers to multiple choice questions

Chapter 5: How to read a systematic review and meta-analysis

Introduction

Biases commonly seen in meta-analyses

Other important strengths and limitations of meta-analyses

Important issues to consider when reading a meta-analysis

Case study: Critical evaluation

Multiple choice questions

References

Answers to multiple choice questions

Chapter 6: How to decide if any of this matters

Introduction

Is the relationship described in the paper causal?

The evidence hierarchy

Austin Bradford Hill

Is the relationship important?

Relative versus absolute risk

Severity of disease

Is the relationship something we can affect or influence?

Number needed to treat (NNT) and numbers needed to harm (NNH)

Population attributable fraction

Cost implications

Conclusion

References

Part Three: How to Do Clinical Research in GI

Chapter 7: How to develop and validate a GI questionnaire

Why do we need questionnaires?

Do we need to develop a questionnaire?

Development of a questionnaire

Adapting a questionnaire

Validation of a questionnaire

Using questionnaires in research

Conclusions

Multiple choice questions

General reference

References

Answers to multiple choice questions

Chapter 8: How to do population-based studies and survey research

Introduction

Population-based surveys

Design of population-based studies

Conclusion

Multiple choice questions

References

Answers to multiple choice questions

Chapter 9: How to find and apply large databases for epidemiologic research

Introduction

Commonly used databases

United States of America databases
Swedish national registers
UK databases
Personal identity numbers
Other databases
[Recommendations for the use of large databases
for research studies](#)
References

Chapter 10: How to do genetic and molecular epidemiologic research

Genetic epidemiology_\(GE\)
Molecular epidemiology_\(ME\)
Epidemiology principles
Error in GE and ME studies
Study designs and approaches
Molecular epidemiology study designs
Genetic epidemiology study designs
Conclusion
Multiple choice questions
References
Answers to multiple choice questions

Chapter 11: Diagnostic studies

Introduction
Measures of test accuracy
The influence of choice of population on diagnostic test performance
The choice of a reference standard

The effect of study design on diagnostic test performance
Conclusions
References

Chapter 12: Randomized controlled trials

Introduction
The key building blocks of randomized controlled design
Stages of drug trial development
Key issues relating to phase II and phase III trials
Types of randomized controlled trial
Conclusions

Part Four: Epidemiology of Major GI Diseases

Chapter 13: Epidemiology of GERD, Barrett's esophagus and esophageal cancer

Introduction
Gastroesophageal reflux disease
Barrett's esophagus
Esophageal cancer
Multiple choice questions
References
Answers to multiple choice questions

Chapter 14: Epidemiology of Helicobacter pylori infection, peptic ulcer disease and gastric cancer

Helicobacter pylori infection

Peptic ulcer

Gastric cancer

Multiple choice questions

References

Answers to multiple choice questions

Chapter 15: Epidemiology of dyspepsia

Disease definitions

Incidence and prevalence

Risk factors

Differential diagnosis

Clinical diagnosis

Alarm features

Natural history and mortality

Disability, quality of life, and healthcare seeking

Prevention

Areas for further study

Conclusions

Multiple choice questions
